Introduction, &c.

Part 2.

On these Heav'n bade the sweets of life depend ; And crush'd ill fortune when it made a friend.

- 4. A solitary blessing few can find; Our joys with those we love are intertwin'd: And he whose wakeful tenderness removes Th' obstructing thorn which wounds the friend he loves, Smooths not another's rugged path alone, But scatters roses to adorn his own.
- 5. Small slights, contempt, neglect, unmix'd with hate, Make up in number what they want in weight: These, and a thousand griefs, minute as these, Corrode our comforts, and destroy our peace. MORE.

SECTION XXIX.

Simplicity.

- 1. HAIL, artless Simplicity, beautiful maid, In the genuine attractions of nature array'd: Let the rich and the proud, and the gay and the vain, Still laugh at the graces that move in thy train.
- 2. No charm in thy modest allurements they find; The pleasures they follow a sting leave behind; Can criminal passion enrapture the breast, Like virtue, with peace and screnity blest?
- 3. O would you Simplicity's precepts attend, Like us, with delight at her altar you'd bend, The pleasures she yields would with joy be embrac'd; You'd practice from virtue, and love them from taste.
- 4. The linnet enchants us the bushes among: Though cheap the musician, yet sweet is the song; We catch the soft warbling in air as it floats, And with ecstasy hang on the ravishing notes.
- 5. Our water is drawn from the clearest of springs, And our food, ner disease nor satiety brings: Our mornings are cheerful, our labours are blest, Our evinings are pleasant, our nights crown'd with rest.
- 6. From our culture yon garden its ornament finds; And we catch at the hint of improving our minds: To live to some purpose we constantly try; And we mark by our actions the days as they fly.
