

British Columbia and Vancouver's Island—Notices continued.

'This work demands the serious attention of everyone intending to emigrate to British Columbia or Vancouver's Island—of every one who would desire information respecting those regions.... We are, moreover, disposed to believe Mr. Macdonald writes in perfect good faith, and has no inducement to advance statements unwarranted by facts, or opinions not well grounded. We regard the work as a most valuable one.'

THE FIELD.

'The geology, botany, and natural history of British Columbia are interestingly discussed, to which are added numerous sketches of the aboriginal inhabitants, with their habits of life and religious observances. We specially recommend the volume.'

EDINBURGH WITNESS.

'The fact of this work having reached a second edition in a comparatively short period indicates its claim to be considered of standard excellence, which it undoubtedly is.'

MORNING ADVERTISER.

'His book is practical, sensible, and well informed on local matters.'

EXAMINER.

'This book contains ample details concerning the geography, natural history, and productions of British Columbia, and to the Author undoubtedly belongs the merit of having written a large and interesting work upon a very important subject.'

STAR.

'His description of the festive entertainments of the Red Indians are highly amusing, and his hints to emigrants are most valuable. We cordially recommend the volume as the work of an accomplished scholar, and an honest, truth-telling man.'

MORNING HERALD.

'Mr. Macdonald paints the country as a great barren ice-bound hungry waste. No doubt British Columbia is very severe in the winter season. Cox's Columbia River, Washington Irving's Astoria, and various other books, go to prove this.'

THE ENGLISHMAN—ATLAS.

'The work commands respect, for it is well written and reliable.'

—MANCHESTER COURIER.

'This instructive volume has been most opportunely published by a gentleman worthy of all trust, and whose scientific attainments are varied and profound.'

STANDARD.

'Undoubtedly the best work on the subject—full of interest, pith, and power.'

LEADER.

'So thorough a handling of the subject is a most valuable contribution to our colonial literature.'

EXPRESS.

'We earnestly recommend the book, which is full of interest, and replete with information.'

ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

'We heartily welcome this volume, as hitherto all accounts have been coulour de rose.'

DIAL.

'This is positively a remarkable, able, and truthful work, which should put writers of fiction to the blush. It verifies the old saying, magna est veritas et prevalebit.'

PIONEER.

'The most wretched and miserable country under the sun. What we heard of it in England was a gross fabrication of infamous lies concocted by interested persons.'

STAR, Nov. 4, 1882.

'I have now read your book from end to end, and I can state very frankly, from my personal knowledge of British Columbia, as well as from deductions formed from accounts communicated to me by many persons who have traversed the country since 1858, that I give full confirmation to all you have said respecting the climate, soil, and physical aspect of the colony.'

A RESIDENT FOR NEARLY TEN YEARS. Vide STANDARD, Nov. 6, 1882.

'We cordially commend this volume as a most striking, comprehensive, and powerful work, of incalculable value to intending emigrants.'

SENTINEL.

'But the illusion of a Utopia is roughly destroyed by Mr. Macdonald, who has written with a bold and vigorous pen, and in an agreeable style.'

PARTHENON AND LITERARY GAZETTE.

'Lord Bacon saith truly, there are three things which make a nation great and prosperous—a fertile soil, busy workshops, and easy conveyance for man and commodities from one place to another; but these essentials are, according to our author, altogether wanting in British Columbia.'

BANNER.

'This is a very able and useful work, scholarly and trustworthy, setting forth the truth in a bold and fascinating style, blending information and entertainment agreeably and successfully. The work is altogether most attractive.'

WARDER.

'The author of this disenchantment tells us that British Columbia is a miserable country—that it wants fine land, prairie, and climate.'

POST.

'These are true statements, and no blame can be strong enough to be applied to those who have ignorantly, carelessly, or wilfully misled, or have furnished up old woodcuts, and dished up glowing paragraphs to lead many families into misery, famine, and death.'
