

and has descendants in town. Robert kept a hotel in Bradford. Joseph was a tanner; and Edward a butcher. William died in England. One sister, Mary, was married to a John Wilkie, a blacksmith, who lived at Coldwater, later he worked with Mr. Butterfield in Bradford, and then in Barrie. Martha married a Mr. Laing, who built and lived in the house just east of the Clarkson House.

LESLIE CALDWELL.—(Not named in Walton's list, as he had died before). This early resident had but a short career. He and David S. Ross came to Barrie from Toronto to open a store. Two carpenters, Buchanan and Fraser, came up from Toronto and built two houses exactly alike. One was where Mr. Hoar's hardware store stands and the other was on the north side of Dunlop Street, in front of Judge Ardagh's Conservatory. Then Caldwell and Ross came up from Toronto and in one of the houses opened a store. There was a big fire on a Sunday, and Caldwell exerted himself so much that he became over-heated, took inflammation of the lungs, and died. All this occurred before the Rebellion. He was a brother of Mrs. Richardson (Prudence Caldwell) who died Feb. 11, 1879, aged 80 years, (Barrie Union Cemetery.) (W. H.)

DUGALD CAMPBELL. He was a tailor, and moved into Barrie some time after 1834. The Government built quite a large log building at Lane's corner (Mulcaster Street), and also two or three shanties behind it for emigrants; and Dugald Campbell lived in one of those. He and his wife were natives of Scotland. His wife, especially, was an enthusiastic Scot, and every Scotchman who came along was a connection of hers. She would say: "If he is no my cousin, he is my good man's cousin, for we are all cousins." He lived in Nottawasaga latterly when that township began to be settled extensively. (W. H.)

JAMES CAMPBELL.—He was a native of Ireland, and a shoe-maker. He was living in Barrie in the summer of 1833 and had probably come that year. He owned the lot at the south-west corner of Dunlop and Sampson streets, and had a shop and a house on it, on the bank, where he lived for some years. Then he built a frame house on the lot immediately opposite, on Dunlop Street, and succeeded pretty well for a time, but afterward "ran through everything." The elder Mr. Strathy afterward occupied the same house. (W. H.)

RICHARD CARNEY kept a little inn on the north side of Dunlop Street, where the store at 46 Dunlop St. now stands. In 1832 he erected the log tavern here for the accommodation of
