YEAR-OLD MYSTERY IS LIKELY TO BE SOLVED

Convict Says Confession of Cell-Mate Reveals Identity of Murderer.

NEW YORK, April 17.—A murder and jewel robbery mystery of a year's standing may be solved, the police believe, thru the sworn statement today of George McVetty, a convicted burglar who was brought to court to be sen-chied. The automobile bandits who moted the diamond shop of Jacob Jacobi, killing his nephew, Adolph Stern, as they fled, were never apprehended.
Meyetry declared today that a cellmate had confessed to him that he in-stigated the crime and carried it ou with the aid of two men and a hired chauffeur. The cellmate whom Mc-Vetty named is Joseph Taylor, con-fessed leader of the band of automobile thickes that terrorized a business seceves that terrorized a business sec-Taylor is a college graduate and for-
