Opening Bill of Week Is Decidedly Strong.

Neck Suen is decidedly one of the big features of the offering at the Grand Opera House during the first half of this week in a bill which, on last night's presentation, should find few empty seats in the theatre. In his act of beauty and mystery, which must have been exceedingly expensive to assemble, he and his demure little Chinese lady, Miss Terressa, delighted the large audience as much as they surprised. It is evident that Suen's claim to rank among the masters of Oriental mystery is no idle boast.

Follis Sisters and Leroy offer a theatrical series of dancing and singing, quickly won favor, and proved an attraction to be rated A1.

Like the birds, it talks, it whistles like the birds, it calls like animals, and when the master has satisfied the demand for these, and, in his role of street musician, has rendered some fine, rollicking pieces, he gives one or two classical selections, which stamp him as a true musician.

Vincent and Raymond present a song and dialogue skit which is neat and clever, and their feature number, a travesty on "Family Affairs," brings laughter galore.

William B. Patten & Co., in a refreshing comedy sketch, and the feature film, "The Eternal Magdalene," make up an evening's entertainment which should satisfy anyone. In the picture the audience sees Maxie Elliott on the screen, and has a chance to compare her work there with her work in person last week as Lady Algy, and, fine though the latter was, the screen presentation loses nothing in the comparison.
