THE DUKE OF LEEDS.

There is something singularly appropriate in the appointment of the Duke of Leeds as Viceroy of Canada. It is such a true. He is married to a granddaughter of that Earl of Durham who, perhaps, was the greatest of all the British Governors-General of the Dominion. The Duke himself, besides being a man of considerable wealth, of much geniality and spirit of repartee, brings to the vice-royalty a flavor of liquor which is sure to contribute to the joviality of his reign. In England he goes by the name of the "gin duke," being the senior partner and managing director of the great firm of Holland & Co., which probably has the largest gin business in the United Kingdom, and which bears a name that is known to the consumers of spirits in every part of the world, civilized and uncivilized. He derives large profits from this source, and whenever he has been able to spare a moment from his Parliamentary duties he has been in the habit of rushing off to Deptford, where the distilleries are, to see how things are getting on.

THE DUKE OF LEEDS.

It is needless to say that the young Duke is as popular with the liquor dealers, great and small, as he is the reverse with the temperance folk. In fact, to the latter he appears as a sort of evil spirit, not only because he takes an active part in the manufacture and sales of spirits, but likewise because he is the champion of a very serious compensation for those liquor dealers who find their business ruined by the liberalization of the temperance propaganda.

DUCHESS OF LEEDS.

The Duke of Leeds set for a time in the House of Commons as member of Parliament for Brington, and many are the stories related of his witty conversation with political adversaries at public meetings, especially at election time. At one of these meetings, which took place during a general election, a Radical, wishing to be jocular, asked him from the body of the hall, if his mother-in-law was not a very young woman. He got the laugh on his side by replying promptly: "Yes, and she will soon know that I am in."

The Duchess is a very clever woman, has written several books, has taken an active part in the councils of the Primrose League, and is the mother of four pretty little girls. She has no boy, and for the present the heir to the dukedom is the Duke's eldest son, the marquis of Cambridge. The Duchess is a much more brilliant woman in every respect than the excellent Countess of Aberdeen, and it may be relied upon that she is free from all the oddities and eccentricities of the latter. She is sure to prove a far more popular and successful viceroy than the Countess. It may be added in conclusion that the Countess is tall and stately, being surpassed in stature, however, by her husband, who shares with the Duke of Somerset the distinction of being taller than any other member of either House of Parliament.

CHAS. MITCHELL WANTS TO FIGHT.

No one on this side of the water took seriously Chas. Mitchell's recent challenge to all comers, but rather in the nature of a joke. However, London Sporting Life has very Moore's letter to the editor, which shows the gentlemen to be in earnest, as their money is up: "Sir—Noticing a challenge from John L. Sullivan to the winner of the Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight, permit me to point out that my son-in-law, Charles Mitchell, ever since his last contest with Corbett, has been willing and ready to fight him again, or his conqueror, and as there is one thing that speaks all languages—according to the ideas of most sportsmen—viz., money, I hereby enclose you a draft for $2000 as forfeit to a match for Mitchell to fight the winner of the Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight at any reasonable time, in England or America, and I will stand up to him in any old style. Should Sullivan think he has a better claim than Mitchell to fight for the championship, that could be decided by fight by Mitchell and Sullivan trying conclusions; the winner to meet the champion. In that case, Sullivan, by covering my deposit of $2000, has made the match for $1000 a side, and I will water an additional $200 Mitchell wins. This is a most positive challenge, my son-in-law, I am not issuing this to do battle for the championship. I would like my son-in-law to have one more fight, for I know he was not in condition to do himself justice when he met Corbett and suffered his first and only defeat. Mitchell at the time he fought Sullivan at Chantilly was in perfect condition and weighed 160 lbs. He only scaled 167 lbs when he met Corbett, and was a sick man. Notwithstanding, he 'faced the music' and showed, though out of condition, he was not lacking in fight. I am not issuing this challenge as an advertisement for myself or son-in-law, as a thank you for the fight, but as a challenge to Corbett or his conqueror would have been made at the ring side, backed up by a substantial deposit. Hoping a match will be made, I am, yours, George Washington Moore. (We hold draft for $2000 on behalf of Mitchell.—Ed. L.)

STORY OF COL VASSOS.

The correspondent of The Standard makes mention of this affair, but adds that under cover of the houses the insurgents were attempting to undermine the fort.

Interview With Col. Vassos.

The Daily Telegraph will to-morrow print an interview had by the correspondent in Crete with Col. Vassos. The Greek commander declared that the protest recently sent by him to the foreign admirals would be the last document of the sort that would be issued by the Greek government.

MONTREAL BRICKLAYERS STRIKE.

A Difference Over Wages and Hours of Work is at the Bottom of the Trouble.

Montreal, April 2.—There is trouble between the union bricklayers of this city and their employers, and the result is a strike on the part of the men, which began this morning and threatens to last several days. The cause of the difficulty is a difference on the subject of wages and hours of work. The men are at present receiving 30 cents an hour and working 10 hours a day, and they ask for a change to 35 cents an hour and nine hours a day, which they claim is the union rate in both respects. The concession has been refused by the employer of the threatened work has already begun. The strikers have been compelled to appeal to their brotherhood to assist them. Telegrams have been sent to Ottawa, Toronto and other points requesting the P. M. C. to issue no travelling cards to Montreal.

GROWING WORSE.

Plantations Never Before Inundated Are Now Under Water, and Boats Have to Be Used.

Jackson, Miss., April 2.—The only change in the situation in the Delta is for the worse. The water is still pouring through the breaks and is increasing rapidly. The situation is thought to be above the danger line. Plantations never before under water are now submerged. The streets of Greenville are now passable only by boat, the flood from above having reached the city. The water is now below. Nearly 100 families in Greenville are surrounded by water. The levees hold, however, and the citizens of Huntington telegraphed the Governor this morning to send 50 tents at once. The levees are being threatened by the first train, but will have to make several miles of journey by skiff. The State of Mississippi is in a perilous position. The water is now below.
