The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

THE man I love doesn't love me. Tell me some way to make him, in the substance of the world-old appeal that occasionally appears in my mail in one name or another.

Dear folks, if I could give any recipe for the solution of that trouble, don't you know that I'd be rich beyond the dreams of avarice or Midas or John Bull?

All I can offer you is just a few suggestions. Take them for what they are worth. I really think that's a little something.

There is an old idea that you want to win a man's love, it helps for you to act indifferent towards him. I think that's a great mistake.

Indifference seldom serves as a spur except when your steed is already galloping. If I wanted to make a man love me, I should show him in a frank, open way—not boldly, or in forward fashion, but just as I would a girl—that I liked and admired him. That, if it didn't do anything else, at least would convince him that I had surprisingly good taste.

Secondly, I should ask his advice. A man naturally feels superior and still, and hence pleased with himself, hence pleased with you. Ask it often, steer him around to telling you what you intend to do anyway, and then make sure you follow his advice, hence pleased with himself.

Then I would take an interest in his health. Never mind how little need there seems to be. The bigger and braver you could do it in a womanly way, the more he would love you, because he has been used to fuss.

And then I would surprise him by the intelligent interest I took in his fads. Next—when you're with a man who has a mania for botany. She knew nothing about botany and hated sciences of all kinds, but she got a book and read it. I said when she told me about it, "Oh, yes," she answered, "I didn't see as I knew anything about it—only as I wanted to know. I did that reading in order to answer his letters, so that I could do it in a womanly way. I would myself to their measure."

When I had brought him to the letter writing stage, I would make it a point, no matter how much I wanted to answer his letters, to let him know that I was comparatively indifferent to acquire an inflated value from delay—and the letter you are really anxious for—well, your eagerness for that gets fairly burned into your brain.

And, lastly, I'd go after him with all the arts that convention allowed me. Of course, I don't mean to be a womanly—although I have seen the woman who hunts her quarry in the open field succeed.

What I mean is, that if I loved a man and were afraid he wasn't going to love me, I would deliberately set to work to study his tastes and his habits, his fads and his ideals, his sense of humor, his admirations and his dislikes, so far as I could do it in a womanly way. I would myself to their measure.

Impossible?

To anything else but love—Yes.

And then I would surprise him by the intelligent interest I took in his fads.

Next—when you're with a man who has a mania for botany.

She knew nothing about botany and hated sciences of all kinds, but she got a book and read it.

I said when she told me about it, "Oh, yes," she answered, "I didn't see as I knew anything about it—only as I wanted to know.

I did that reading in order to answer his letters, so that I could do it in a womanly way.

I would myself to their measure."

WORLD'S DEBT TO CANADA

A WONDERFUL ACHIEVEMENT

Discovery of "Fruit-a-lives" Has Meant Health for All

Canada's fame does not rest solely on her furs and wheat fields. Her rise in the esteem of the world is not due to her Cobalt mines. It is the work of her great men that has made her great. A graduate of McGill University has won lasting renown for his original researches in the realm of physics.

Everyone knows that fruit is wholesome, when eaten judiciously. Physicians generally recognize the fact that fruit juices have a beneficial effect on the various organs of the body.

It remained for a Canadian physician to discover a process whereby pure fruit juices could be made into a palatable and healthful beverage.

"Fruit-a-lives" is this combination of fruit juices and tonics. Since its introduction to the public, "Fruit-a-lives" has actually made for more healthful living in the world. The reason is plain. "Fruit-a-lives" is the one remedy that is actually made of fruit, and is the only remedy that naturally cures Constipation, Biliousness, Indigestion, Headache, Rheumatism, Neuritis, Backache, Kidney and Skin Troubles. At all dealers at 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial size, 25c, or from Fruit-a-lives Limited, Ottawa.
