ST. JOHN, N. B., JULY 27, 1901.

THE BRITISH NAVY.

And yet the alarm has been sounded

The British naval expenditure has more than doubled in eight years. The appropriation in 1892-93 was $70,000,000. The vote this year is over $150,000,000, including $45,000,000 for new ships that the British navy is weaker than it ought to be.

When we come to read the parliamentary discussions on the subject it is found that the reflections on the British navy are based on a new standard. The traditional policy of the Empire is the two power standard, that is to say Britain should have a fleet in European waters, and in the world, equal to that of any other swo powers. But now it is demanded that the British fleet should equal that of any three powers. The first lord suggests that if this standard were reached a four power standard would next be demanded. He finds that the eight chief powers of Europe have now 318 battle ships and cruisers, of which England has 120, or more than half as many as the other seven powers. Lord Selborne adds that by the first of January three ships of the Cressy class, four Formidables and two of the Canopas type will be completed. more battle ships and first class cruisers will be delivered. Ten destroyers are on this year's programme. The modern navy outfit includes repairing ships which remain with the Mediterranean fleet, submarine boats, of which five are now under contract, and a "Devil ship." whose business it. is to act as a store ship for explo-

It is supposed that the three battle strongest and most effective ever designed. They are to be 16,500 tons disment, which is far larger than power is to be 18,000, which is large for a battle ship. Though not equal the size, this force is expected to give ships are protected with a belt of eight and nine inch armor plate. They will carry ten 6 inch guns enclosed in a battery with seven inch armor, two 9.2 inch guns and four 12 inch guns. The names of these three ships are significant. One is to be the King Edward, the other two the Common-wealth and the Dominion.

The modern British navy, like all other navies, is an experiment: No war. No modern ship of any nation has been exposed to the severe test of action, for the Spanish ships destroyed action, for the Spanish ships destroyed at Santiago or those which Dewey battered at Manila were of an in-ferior class, and could not subject the conquering ships to any serious test. A better example was afforded in the war between China and Japan, but the tions be said to have fought, consequently the real battle between ships of modern type handled by a fighting ple has not taken place. If the should ever be made the British tought to be equal to the emerg-, for the best thought and care of nation, and the unlimited resources

STAND BY THE VERDICT

The Fredericton Herald begs the e of York to "stand by the vergiven, as it says, by the country and the dominion generally in favor of Sir Wilfrid Laurier last mber. If any elector of York is of the opinion that the true and honest verdict of York last autumn was in favor of Dr. McLeod and against the Laurier government, he will naturally take this counsel to heart and "stand by the verdict." The Fredertoton Gleaner, which cannot be accused of past or present unfriendliness to Mr. Gibson, has, we believe, affirmed that Dr. McLeod got a large majority of the free and unpurchased vote of York. When we consider that neither he nor his friends spent a dollar in the purchese of votes, and take thought of the immense campaign fund, and the large influence, amounting almost to on that was exercised against him in certain quarters, it goes without saying that Mr. Gibson's majority of sixty was really a minority of the independent vote of the county. This being so, the appeal to the electors to stand by the verdict" should have a far different effect from that intended It is, or should be, an appeal to every man who gave a free and conscien tious verdict to stand by that deliver

Mr. Gibson and his leading support ers have solemnly agreed to do all they can to prevent any corrupt or illegal practices on their side in the coming contest. The people of the county have a right to expect that this agreement, which was the basis of the settlement of the election petition, will be observed. The undertaking was consideration for the withdrawal of further proceedings against Mr. Gibson and his friends. It would be a most dishonorable thing and a gross breach of faith if the pledge should not be kept. If the compact is observed in the letter and spirit, Mr. Gibson will still ronage of two governments, and of the immense business influence of his family and the corporation to which he belongs. But Dr. McLeod will have the advantage that honest votes polled for him will not be destroyed by mer dict will perhaps be such as the c ty really gave last November, that was in favor of Dr. McLeod.

NEW YORK IS ALL RIGHT.

The New York Sun hears a wierd story to the effect that the Duke of Cornwall will not visit New York, for fear that he should be snubbed by Mayor Van Wyck and other official people. It seems that the mayor has addressed certain pro-Boer meetings, in which he used rather violent language. Some one has also remembered than an official message of condolence was sent by the municipality to Austria on the occasion of the death of the Empress, but that the council paid no attention to the death of Queen Victoria.

This is all very interesting but decidedly local and self-conscious. Neither the Duke of Cornwall nor his royal father has ever heard of Mayor Van Wyck's speeches or messages, though his name might suggest sympathy with Kruger. If His Royal Highness does not go to New York it is because New York is not a stage in a colonial

There could be no fear of an uncivil reception. No members of the British

Paval house, or even of the aristocracy of England, have had occasion to complain of the coldness of their welcome in the United States. In Canada we welcome members of the royal family, for reasons of loyalty as well as hospitality. In the United States their attentions more effusive and and hearty than ours. New York would give the Duke and Duchess a flattering reception, outshining in splendor and glory anything that Canada can show. The royal couple would be greater than Dewey was when he was the fashion. Mayor Van Wyck would dispense a more than oriental hospitality. The Duke would be the centre of a greater crowd of fashionable people than ever he saw together a speed of 181-2 knots. These great in his life. More millionaires would be introduced to him than are to be seen at any European capital. He would receive greater adulation than an ancient eastern potentate. But the royal party is not after that sort of thing, and may refrain from visiting New York. This failure to turn aside may surprise the dwellers in Gotham, but it will be no reflection on the mayor of New York.

> A FRENCH STATESMAN'S APPRE-CIATION.

All the French papers in Montrea and Quebec reproduce the tribute paid to Canada by M. Andre Siegfried, a Kimberley paid no dividend for the former member of the cabinet of year ending June, 1900, but the war France, who recently visited this Paris, M. Siegfried pays his respects per cent. dividends were paid for the to the United States and then proceeds to give his impressions of Canada. "All Frenchmen," writes M. Siegfried, "who travel in Canada cherish charming memories of it. I am no exception to the rule. I wellknew that the influence of the ancient civilization of France remained fresh and permanent, but I was far from fully realizing it.

"When one travels through the refinds himself in a land that is Norman and Breton. For fifteen days I did not, so to speak, pronounce a word of English. All about me recalled France. The little streets of Quebec made me think of those of Havre, and the accent of the Canadiens resembles that of the peasants of the lower Seine.

"We were received my son and I as true compatriots. I saw the tri color oftener than the British flag. "I teach you nothing when I tell you of the great political influence, of French Canadians. I am able myself to judge that it increases every day and that the time is not far off when the French will be almost as numer ous as the English

The presence of Sir Wilfrid Laurier at the head of the government "has given our race a prestige which

"It has never had in Cahada till now. "and French influence will not fail #

M. Siegfried goes on to speak of the natural wealth of the country and its great future.

SCOLONEL TUCKER'S POSITION. Those who complain that Colone Tucker is not a wonderfully effective representative of this commercial community should do him the justice to remember that he believes St. John city has one representative too many. The only speech which the colonel has made in parliament during his six sessions was in favor of taking away half the representation of the citizens The only bill in which he took enough interest to rise to his feet and address the house in its favor was Mr. Blair's project to deprive the city of a share in electing the county member. If Mr. Blair and the colonel had their way St. John city would today have one member and the parishes alone would elect the other. Colonel Tucker informed the House in his single speech that the people of St. John city were in favor of this change, and he was also in favor of it. This testimony emed to show that the colonel was presenting the people of St. John and that they were equally tired of him. Through the perversity of Mr. Ellis, who opposed the measure, and of Mr. Blair's colleagues in the cabinet, who struck out his favorite clause, Colonel Tucker sits against his will as a representative of this city. The failure of Colonel Tucker as a representative may be better understood by remembering that he thinks the city should have no second representative. In carrying out that theory

Contractor Gilliland has done a good deal of government work this summer and has been engaged to do more. Some of this work is done without tender. For some work tenders were called for and he got the contract, though he was not the lowest tenderer. While contractor and revisor Gilliland is getting all this consideration from Dr. Pugsley, the attorney general might find occasion to ask him what he did with the genuine list of Rothesay electors and how the address on the envelope containing the bogus list hanpened to be in his handwriting. Mr. Gilliland was asked to explain this but declined to do so until the proper time arrived. When he tells all knows Dr. Pugsley and justice will be though it would not be safe to say how far justice and Dr. Pugsley will follow the trail.

it becomes necessary for him to be as near to no representative as possible.

Mr. Brodrick, the secretary for war. has troubled the pro-Boers by the way he has met the charges of Miss Hob house respecting the refugee camps in South Africa. The committee of investigation includes Mrs. Fawcett, widow of the late Hon. Henry Fawcett, the blind cabinet minister. Mrs. Fawcett is a woman of great learning, and has wider knowledge of public affairs than any other lady in England. It will not be easy to discredit a report which she may prepare.

Perhaps the address of Professor Koch at the Tuberculosis Congress is not so sensational as was expected. Yet it contains one interesting contention which, if accepted or hereafter established, may go far to relieve the mind of panicky people. The great authority on the tuberculosis microbe has reached the conclusion that cows and humans do not have the same kind of consumption, and that neither a less important industry if this is found to be so.

The De Beers Diamond Mines was no loss to the company. The country. Writing to the Temps of price of diamonds increased, and forty year ending June, 1901. The £5 shares of the company are now worth £32, which is higher than the price before the war.

Le Soleil of Quebec city makes ar interesting suggestion for the reception of the Duke of Cornwall. It proposes that 1800 pretty little girls from the schools, dressed some in red, som gion of the lower St, Lawrence he red on one of the squares as to represent the Union Jack. These girls would sing "God Save the King."

> Among the group of ladies who the other day received certificates showing that they had received the train ing and passed the examinations qualifying them to be district nurses was Lady Blackwood, a daughter of the Marquis of Dufferin. Her father and mother were present when she and her 242 associates received their badges from the hands of the Queen.

This will never do. Twelve horses for the Duke of Cornwall and his party at Halifax and only six in St

(From Our Own Correspondent.) BOSTON, July 24.—Bostonians are lowly realizing that they have much to be thankful for, although it has been rather a hard task for them to reach this frame of mind. The weather conditions have been something to try the patience of a denizen of the propics, but they have not been able to hold a candle with those which have oppressed and parched the middle western states this month. The present season to date has been the ost trying to residents of Boston known in many years, but apparently the city has been cool in comparison with New York, Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, Indianapolis and other cities, where the thermometer for several days (New York excepted) has been at times as high as 106 and 107 in the shade.

The old question, handed down relic of the Spanish war, "Was it Sampson or was it Schley?" is still being threshed out by the American press and American navy. Most peo-ple had supposed that the issue as to who was the better officer at the naval engagement off Santiago de Cuba had been allowed to die out practically manswered, but the friends of Ad mpson struck another blow at naval harmony this week, by parad ing before the wearled public another attack on Admiral Schley, the Southfleet when it sunk the imprisoned vessels of Cervera, the gallant Spansoner of war as never before was dicament by the American nation. In eturn, Schley's friends let go a padside at Sampson, and the cross firing is still in progress. The ceremony was performed by the Rev Mr Bonnell on the verandah, the contracting parties standing under an arch of daisies and golden rod. The bride appeared leaning on her father's arm and looked very pretty in a blue grey serge dress, trimmed with white satin llover lace. She carried a handsome bouquet of cornations, maiden hair ferns and smilax. Little Miss Emma May Tufts of St. John, as maid of onor, looked charming in a pink silk dress and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. Miss Mary McCready played the wedding march. After the ceremony the guests, numbering about fifty, repaired to the dining room, and partook of a sumptuous tea, after which a very enjoyable evening was spent in conversation, music, games, etc. The popularity of the bride and groom was amply shown by the large number of handsome presents they received, amongst which were a me picture (water color), from Henry Robertson, and a check from Mrs. James Johnson, The groom's present to the bride was a heavy gold
