Bowdoin Politics—Batterat Bridge news of the Sussex Record says: "A spot of the Queens county Canaan meeting called by Hetherington and Wood last Saturday night, says it was the most comical show he has seen for years. One man, being excited, pulled off his boots, fired them in the air, threw away his hat, and struck a man in the back hard enough to knock him over the footlights. Others were equally excited and acted just as comically. Hetherington denounced the local M. P. in strong terms, and was met by loud exclamations such as 'that's not so.' 'You're a beauty and others of the same tenor. It is a fact that politics can't possibly get higher than they do in Bowdoin, Queens county.'

If you have catarrh, don't dally with local remedies, but purify and enrich your blood with Hood's Sarsaparilla.

A GROWSOME F.R.D.

Four Persons Lying Dead in a Massachusetts House.

MALDEN, Mass., Feb. 13—A growsome spectacle was brought to the attention of a policeman early this evening when he went to a small house in the rear of a tannery located behind one of the shoe factories of the John A. Frye Company. He found the room full of smoke and in a room off the kitchen four persons lying on a mattress, which had been placed on the floor, all dead, and in the kitchen three other persons in a state of insensibility. The dead are—Edward Underwood, aged 50 years; Olive Underwood, aged 24, daughter of Edward; John Clifford, two years old, son of Olive; Frances Underwood, eight years old, daughter of Edward.

The unconscious persons were: Robert McMillan, about 55 years old; Mrs. Underwood, wife of Edward Underwood; Guy Underwood, a son. This particular case was brought to light when a young woman informed the officer that she had seen the four persons in the room. She had been passing the house and noticed the smoke coming from the chimney. She entered the house and found the four persons lying on the mattress. She called for help and the officer arrived.

The officer went to the kitchen and found a woman sitting beside the stove. She did not answer, so the officer threw open the windows to clear the smoke. Then he perceived an elderly man lying on a lounge and a young man sitting in a chair beside the stove. He called to the man in the chair and he came forward. The man in the chair was the only one who could give any information.

The man in the chair was a small wood stove in which a fire was burning, but there was little wood in it. The man in the chair was the only one who could give any information. He said that the four persons had been in the room for some time and that they were all dead.
