The Inquest on the bodies of the engi-neer and fireman, killed by the late boller explosion, was resumed yesterday in the Coroner's room at the Dead House. The first witness called was John Smith who was employed in Mr. Murphy's factory and present at the time the accident took place. His evidence was that on Monday evening about 10 o'clock he was in the boller exploded. About three minutes ndantly realized, it is clear that boiler exploded. About three minutes before the explosion he went and looked Act to satisfy the demands of an adjoinin the glass guage, there was at that time between two and three inches of water in it; he then stood beside the engine in it; he then stood beside the engine with his foot on the wheel.
