

R. PARNELL ON THE EVICTIONS.

Land League Demonstration in London.

On Sunday afternoon an anti-eviction demonstration was held in Hyde Park, on the carriage drive skirting the north bank of the Serpentine. At three o'clock a number of Home Rule and Land League men, with a considerable following of sympathizers, assembled in Trafalgar Square.

After the meeting was formally organized, Mr. Parnell made the following forcible speech touching the course of the Government in enforcing the eviction of tenants:

He said they were met there that day at an unexampled crisis in the history not only of Ireland, but of the United Kingdom, to demand that the armed forces of the Government might be used to enforce unjust evictions in Ireland (cheers). But the Government asks, "How are we to know what are unjust and what are just evictions?" They say that many of the Irish tenants while they are perfectly able to pay their rents refuse to do so. The Government know very well—and they could obtain from the constabulary authorities if they were in ignorance, information on the subject—which were just and which unjust evictions (cheers). The Government that the vast majority of the 3,000,000 tenants who were subjected to eviction at the last Quarter Sessions in Ireland were thoroughly unable to pay the rents demanded of them. Mr. Foster—(cries of "Backshot Foster" and groans)—said at the close of last session that he would carefully watch the actions of the landlords, and the character of the evictions of the winter that was then coming, and he promised that if he found the landlords were to any extent exercising their rights of eviction harshly and compelling the Government to assist in the infliction of justice, while the Government would ask Parliament for exceptional powers against the people, they would accompany that request with some kind of bill to prevent unjust eviction. He (Mr. Foster) went over to Ireland and fell under the influence of the Government officials of Dublin Castle—(groans)—and when Parliament reassembled in the month of January he asked for coercion to protect the agent, but not the power to protect the tenants (groans). The consequence was that the conduct of the landlords brought about the people of Ireland. The Government stepped in and used troops, which were paid by the money of the people for the support of injustice in Ireland. The other day 600 military and police were sent to a place called Doon, near Newry, in the county of Limerick, for the purpose of assisting an absentee landlord of the name of Colonel Hare, of Devonport, in England, to evict his tenants. The English press—or, at all events, the metropolitan press—represented the people of this country that this Colonel Hare had always lived on amicable terms with his tenants until the formation of the Irish Land League, and they said it was owing to this Irish Land League that Colonel Hare had fallen out with his tenants, and had thus been compelled to evict them. It was further said that the Colonel's rents were just. Ho (Mr. Parnell) had just received a letter from Father O'Donnell, the Catholic curate of Doon, who gave an account of this "very excellent man," according to the English newspaper. Father O'Donnell said that Colonel Hare had, during the last twenty-five years evicted from his property, consisting of 1,200 or 1,400 acres, some eighty families, or 450 individuals ("shame"). One of his tenants, a poor man named McInery, who was suffering from fever at the time, was dragged out on to the roadside, and he and his wife were tied to a cart and carried to Doon, a distance of two miles. The poor woman became crazy, and it was her habit to curse the landlord on her knees before the people assembled to hear Mass on Sunday. This was the man whom they were to support in evicting his tenants, and to enable him to secure rack rents, which were very nearly 50 per cent over the Government valuation, evicting his tenants the English people were being taxed in order to send him armed assistance (cries of "shame," and groans). Mr. Foster and the Government, however, said they did not know who were the unjust landlords. It was a mockery to say that the Government would not ascertain the history of a landlord, and the doings of a landlord like Colonel Hare. The responsibility that would rest upon the Government would be very serious if these evictions continued. It was he convinced, for the interests of the Irish landlords that evictions bearing the aspect of inflicting injustice should not be continued. The Government told them that it was only a minority of the Irish landlords who were unjust. He did not believe this. Mr. Bright said that only one-tenth of the Irish landlords were unjust, and that the Government Land Law Bill would put a stop to their power to do injustice; but these unjust Irish landlords were taking time by the forelock and clearing their estates before the bill could protect the tenants ("Shame"). Meanwhile the people were brought into conflict with the Government. The Government was becoming discredited in Ireland, because its power was being used to support injustice (cheers). Let the Government make their laws just before they enforced them, and they would find no people would more readily obey them than the Irish people, but they could not be expected to stand calmly by while wives and children were being cast out of their homes, and while the roof was being torn from over their heads. The Irish people had been very patient—they have been too patient—but they were now becoming aroused to a sense of their position, to the power that eviction and passive resistance gave the people. He called upon the Government while there was still time, while yet this question was not beyond the chance of settlement by any Government, to pass laws preventing eviction, which would do justice to the tenantry of Ireland.

ETHAN ALLEN'S DAUGHTER.

In his reminiscences of Montreal, in the Star of that city, Mr. H. Durwin writes: "I have one more little event to mention, one that is scarcely worth recording, only that it interested me very much at the time it happened, and recalls the name of a man somewhat renowned in the Revolutionary war, and connected with an important event in Montreal's history. On Dec. 10, 1819, there died at the Hotel Dieu, on St. Paul street, a nun known as Sister Allen, and she was the daughter of the famous Colonel Ethan Allen, who, it will be remembered, accompanied Montcalm in his invasion of Canada in 1755, and, after the battle of the Plains, was captured, and sent to England in irons. She came from her home in Burlington, Vt., in 1808, when twenty-four years old, and she spent eleven years in the convent. I never knew of her presence here until one afternoon I heard on the street that a daughter of the brave but unfortunate old soldier had just died in the Hotel Dieu, and I hurried over to see her. Her body was lying in state in the chapel, and it being my first visit to a convent, the solemn stillness of the place, the wax-lights burning beside the coffin, the nuns kneeling there repeating prayers for the departed soul, and, above all, the thoughts called up by the name and presence of the dead woman, all made a strong impression upon me. The body lay thus for three days, and was visited by a great many people. She was one of the most beautiful women, even in death, that ever I saw, and belonged to one of the best families in New England. Why she left the world to become a nun, I never knew. It was strange, too, that the daughter should seek refuge in the very city which the father had invaded, and where he met with his worst misfortune."

LACK OF APPETITE IN CHILDREN. FROM CHARLES H. COLEMAN, Manufacturer of Flavoring Extracts, 21 Blackstone street, Boston.

"Last Spring my little daughter, aged five, became very much emaciated with loss of appetite, and great prostration of strength, so much so that we were obliged to take her out of school. This continued through the Summer and caused us much anxiety. After trying various remedies without deriving any benefit, our family physician recommended the use of PEARLY LAX SYRUP. After using it one week we saw a marked improvement in the child's condition, and in a month she was rapidly gaining in health and strength, her appetite being excellent. At this date she is perfectly well, with round, plump cheeks, and healthy color, and is again attending school regularly. I consider her restoration to health entirely due to the PERUVIAN SYRUP, and feel that I cannot too highly recommend it as a tonic." Druggists sell PERUVIAN SYRUP.
