

HIS NAME WAS BRUM

Suspected of Complicity in the Clayson Murder Case.

Story in a Nome Paper Brings Out Details From a Fireman in Seattle No. 3.

From Saturday's Daily.

In yesterday's issue of the Nugget a clipping was published from the Nome Gold Digger of Sept. 21, concerning a party who was suspected of complicity in the Clayson murder. It was stated in the article in question that the man was recognized by a passenger on the Seattle No. 3, who is said to have been a detective, as having been on the trail at the time of the Clayson murder and whose actions at that time were such as to warrant suspicion being directed against him.

Last evening Matt Coursey, who was employed on the Seattle No. 3 on the trip in question, called at the Nugget office and stated that from the account republished from the Nome paper, he fully recognized the man.

"I was on the Seattle No. 3 working as fireman," said Coursey, "when the man referred to in the Gold Digger got aboard. He came on the boat at Nulato and got a job working his way up as deck hand. He claimed to have just come out of the Koyukuk where he had lost his partner. He said his partner was crazy. He gave his name as Brum, although as I said I worked his way as deck hand. On several occasions he displayed a roll and bought whisky for all the hands.

"He was a coarse featured, heavy set man of muscular build. He wore a long ulster, heavy shoes and slouch hat. He remained on the boat until we reached Fort Gibbon, where he got off."

"So far as I know, there was no one on board who suspected him of being concerned in the Clayson case, but there is no doubt in my mind that he is the same man described in the article published in the Nugget from the Gold Digger. If he is the man wanted he is either at Fort Gibbon or else has gone up into the Tanana country."

Captain Woods Returns.

Capt. Woods, of the T. & E. Co., arrived from a hazardous trip down river by scow, canoe and steamer last night. He made the trip from Whitehorse to Selwyn in a scow in which he has some 20 tons of general merchandise consigned to his company's store. At that point misfortune overtook him and his scow was grounded on a bar with the added grip of the ice to hold it in place until next spring.

Launching a canoe the intrepid captain started down stream amid the flowing ice, narrowly missing being crushed in several instances until the pack got so heavy that further progress was impossible. Fortunately the Emma Nott bumped along at this point, scow island, and passage on her was obtained for the balance of the journey. This part of the trip was no summer picnic as the boat had to be sparred, over one bar after another and wood cut and packed, in one instance over a mile.

On his way down stream Capt. Woods counted 60 scows stuck on the river. Three out of every four being loaded with hay and grain. Between Whitehorse and Dawson it is estimated that fully 1400 tons of freight is tied up for the winter, and in the case of many scows the consignments of feed are completely spoiled as the scows are deserted and water filled.

At Monte Cristo island a sight was witnessed which when learned of by the interested owners will make those gentlemen fall from grace and relapse into a state of barbarism. Three men were observed on a scow which struck a bar, and instead of taking all precaution to save the freight entrusted to them they commenced throwing overboard the bale of hay and tons of feed. When the scow was last seen not a sack of feed could be observed in the hold, but the river was spouting hay and grain in immense quantities.

Another evidence of imbecility on the part of some one was evidenced by a fleet of seven scows on Lake Lebarge manned by but seven men. Three of the scows were lost, owing to the impossibility of the crew handling the crafts.

The Anglian, which was to help the C. D. Co.'s scows is herself frozen in fast near Selwyn.

Wall of a Drug Clerk.

"Say!" exclaimed a man in one of Dawson's drug emporiums yesterday, "I wish that wise guy who tried to get into a drug store one morning last week and couldn't, would come around some time and settle up."

"Owe you something?" asked the Nugget man.

"Yes, he does. He owes me 25 cents, but it ain't the size of the bill that worries me so much as the way he got it. You see it was this way. He came here and banged at the front door one morning early till he got me out of bed, and when I let him in he wanted to know if I kept postage stamps. I told him I did, and he said, with the air of a Rothschild closing a half million dollar deal, that he would take 25 cents worth."
