Girls who work are particularly susceptible to female ills, especially when obliged to stand on their

Day in and day out, month in and month out, the year through, the working girl toils; she is often the bread winner of the family, and must work that others may live; whether she is sick or well, whether it rains or shines, whether it is warm or cold she must get to her place of employment and perform the duties around the family.

duties exacted from her. Among this class the symptoms of female diseases are early manifest by weak and aching backs, pain in the lower limbs and lower part of the stomach; in consequence of frequent wetting of the lest monthly periods become painful and irregular, and frequently faint and dizzy spells, with loss of appetite, until life is a burden and it is hard work to drag about. All these symptoms point to a de angement of the female organism, and if taken in time can be easily and permanently cured.

A Cordial Invitation to Every Sick and Ailing Working Girl.

It is to these girls that Mrs. Pinkham holds out a helping hand, and extends a cordial invitation to correspond with her. Her unrivalled record of success in treating woman's ills makes her letters of advice of untold value. to every ailing working girl, and from her wide experience and skill she quickly points the way to health. Her advice is free, and all letters are held by her in the strictest confidence. Address, Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass. Don't put off writing her until your health is wrecked.

trimmed with point d'esprit lace or the heavier varieties. Pale colored challies are also inexpensive, as they only require a touch of lace and a sash brought up empire wise from beneath the arms.

Nearly all the pretty negligees are made empire style, although there are a few who try to revive the Greek draperies. One of the easiest ways of making an empire house gown is to arrange a princess slip of tucked material run through with perpendicular bands of insertion. At the bottom should be two or three ruffles of the material, either fulled or accordion plaited. Over this comes a short bo-

How Hats Were Introduced to the South African Savages. Andries De Villiers, a Boer, was the person who first introduced hats among the South African natives, says the Hatters' Gazette, and profit, not philan-hropy, was his motive. One morning many years ago he chanced in Port Elizabeth to come across a consignment of damaged hats offered for a mere song. He bought the whole lot, packed them away in his wagon and started for Kaffirland.

When he reached Tembuland, he unloaded his stock, opened his kegs of liquor, without which no trade was made in those days, and began business. But he found his venture likely to prove an unprofitatie one. The natives did not want hats. They wanted blankets and beads and looking glasses and above all liquor, but they looked askance at hats. Then a bright idea came to Andries. He wanted to introduce those hats. He did introduce them. His simple expedient was to refuse to sell anything to a Kaffir unless he bought a hat too. The Katlirs wanted his goods, so they bought the hats. When a Kaffir buys anything, he feels bound to make use of it. The natives therefore donned their head gear and returned to their kraals. Now appeared the brilliancy of the trader's put together, and until the last few idea. Fashion rules the world. It is as years was supposed to be incurable. strong in Africa as in America, and when those who had stayed at home saw the travelers return in all the glory of this strange covering they felt behindhand and old fashioned. Their desire to possess the latest thing in hats became intense. They paid Andries a visit, and his stock no longer hung heavy upon his hands. The hats were soon sold.

This happened some time ago, and now every trading store keeps a supply of hats constantly on hand. They are said to be manufactured expressly for the natives, and no one who glances at the show will doubt it.

A JUGGLER'S TRICK.

Clever Feat of Illusion Performed by an East Indian.

jugglers have formed the theme of many a letter from travelers in the orient, but none is more surprising than that for which an old seadog vouches. While he was an officer on board a P. and O. steamship two natives came aboard at Madras, he says. They were a juggior and his assistant. After they had performed a number of minor feats and gathered quite a crowd around them they called for a sack through with pale blue ribbon. The bertha is slashed here and there and These having been provided, the is trimmed with narrow lace and the chief juggler made a small tentlike beading. The sleeves are tucked to structure with the canvas and some the elbow, and from there they puff stools. He then placed his assistant into a tight wristband. The bottom in the sack and allowed a sailor to tie. of the gown is trimmed with a gaththe knot which bound him a fast prisered ruffle headed by beading and riboner. This done, the chief carried the sack into an open space, warning the people to stand back some distance, and then carried on an animated conversation with his assistant, whose replies could be distinctly heard coming from the sack. Suddenly the chief rushed forward, picked up the sack and dumped it overboard, where, to the horror of the passengers and crew, it sank out of sight. Immediately the captain rushed for ward and seized the man, under the full belief that he had murdered his companion, but the juggler enly smiled and, pointing to the canvas, asked that it be raised. This was done, and the supposed drowned man was discovered squatting on the deck. So realistic had been the throwing overboard, however, that it was some time before the surprised passengers could realize a murder had not been

Pale Taffeta Gowns -- White Dresses More Popular Than Ever.

For evening wear nothing can be smarter at present than a dress of plain pale colored taffeta appliqued with rich yellow lace. Dresses of this sort are made with many pin tuckings, with soft fronts covered with the applique and chiffon sashes. They are decorated with little embroldered medallions and dainty touches of every
