FROM BLACKFOOT LAND.

Saids About Northwest Indian Life—Some Prairie Curious—M. Jobin Tells of Missions Work.

A healthy, weather-browned face, a manner bubbling over with enthusiasm and kindly courtesy, a sturdy, active frame that a trained athlete might admire—these are some of the attributes of Alexandre Silvio Jobin, a delightful French-Canadian missionary priest, who was recently interviewed when passing through Toronto.

Monsieur Jobin is back for a while from the Northwest, where his missionary "district" stretches from Winnipeg on the east to the Rocky Mountains on the west. He has brought with him a whole batch of Indian curios for Mr. James Morgan of Montreal.

One of the first was a long and imposing apron-like arrangement that went round the neck and hung down over the breast. "This is something we can't get any more," said Monsieur Jobin. "The Indians are getting lazy, and these are too much trouble nowadays. They use these for the sun-dance and the war-dance. They have a long Indian name, which you are welcome to if you like, but I call them 'Freemason's aprons,' to save trouble. This belonged to a chief."

Some of the most interesting of Monsieur Jobin's curios are a number of bands worked in patterns with glass beads, and perfectly transparent. "People go wild after these," said he. They were certainly beautiful bits of work, showing no trace of any thread. So fine are the beads, that a needle will not go through them, and the Indians use a particular kind of sharp weed for the purpose.

Monsieur Jobin held up also some curiously worked patterns, beautifully designed.

"The boys make these patterns," he said. "You give them a piece of paper, and they will sit down on the floor and work out these by intertwining colored strips. It passes human imagination to think that these little Indians, without any instruction at all, can make such designs."

It is a mixed population that inhabits the wide Western lands where Monsieur Jobin and his fellow-missionaries work. There in Assiniboia is a colony of Belgians at St. Maurice Belgrade. All along the main line of the railway the population is English. Along the Arcelle line are settlers from Ontario. At St. Antony is a French-Canadian colony, while Icelanders, Russians, Jews and other nationalities also abound. The French-Canadians at St. Antony live in houses made of cut sods, like the farm buildings in Iceland, the Faroe Islands, and some of the Highlands and islands of Scotland. They are beautifully warm, and last about four years, "but," said Monsieur Jobin, "there is a very unpleasant thing about them in summer time. The snakes come through them, and make acquaintance with you in the house."

Two years ago Monsieur Jobin was on the Blackfoot Crossing Reserve, with the Blackfoot Indians. "They don't get civilized very much," he said. "Whatever we do for them now, we should feel the results of only in the generations to come."

It is the Cree who do the work of which the kindly priest has brought back such interesting specimens.

"Are there any adventures associated with these curios of yours?" asked the reporter.

"Well," answered Monsieur Jobin, "this cap you see—it isn't much of a cap."

It certainly was not the sort of cap one would care to walk down Yonge street in on a Sunday morning, being a peculiar erection of feathers sticking up like a fence all around the edge. At the end of the cap were three little balls, and thereby hung a tafe. It seemed that the particular band of Cree, from whom this cap came were on the prairie one day, preparing for the sun-dance, when suddenly a dreadful thunderstorm came on. The man who was wearing the cap was struck dead. To appease the rage of the thunder-god, his fellows took the cap, and hung the bells on it, and stuck it up on a pole on the prairie, and made a great sacrifice. The poor, deluded Cree don't offer five cent pieces to the Great Spirit, but heap the best they have round the pole of sacrifice, and then go away and leave the good things to be taken by the Great Spirit at his leisure. "They just leave them there on the prairie to go to ruin," said Monsieur Jobin, "and we take them, and then, when they come in a few weeks' time and find they have gone, they have another dance, to show their gratitude to the Great Spirit for accepting their sacrifice. So it is satisfactory all round."

"The people who travel through the West don't see anything of the Indians if they stop in Winnipeg. The best way to see them is to take a rig and leave the cities, and go through the prairies on the reserves. Then they may see the ways of the Indians at their daily life."

"By the way," he added, "my Indian name is Minipoka, which means 'spoiled child,' because, when I first went among them, fresh from college, the Indians treated me so well, after their fashion."

Unique Bonus Asked.

The bonus idea has reached the limit in St. Thomas, Alma College, a ladies' seminary, directed by Methodists, is asking a subsidy of $15,000 to enable it to avoid closing the doors. The building is a handsome one, that would cost perhaps $50,000. It has been in existence for twenty years or more. The ratepayers are asked to pass a by-law to raise $15,000. The ground of asking is that the institution distributes a great deal of money, and is a great advantage to the city, which indeed it is. It costs about $25,000 a year to maintain the college, most of which sum is spent for the necessities of the table and fuel. From many standpoints it is an admirable institution to have in a city of St. Thomas size.

Curate—It must be a comfort to you, Mrs. Smith, to reflect that your life has been well spent.

Mrs. Smith—Oh! Yes, pretty well, thank you sir. I've buried three husbands in my time.

The man on the stage who does the trick of escaping from firmly tied ropes, submits to the bonds with a smile. He knows he can get out of the ropes that are being knotted. Put the same man in the woods and let Indian captors bind him to a tree for torture and he would struggle to the last against the bonds.

When the stomach is diseased there are bonds being woven every hour about the organs dependent on the stomach—heart, lungs, liver, kidneys, etc. The folly of mankind is to passively submit to the fastening of these bonds with no effort to escape until the pain they cause arouses fear.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It cures diseases of heart, liver, lungs, kidneys and other organs, when these diseases, as is often the case, have their origin in the diseased stomach.

"For a long time I was suffering and was hardly able to get about," writes Mr. Andrew J. Jennings, of Thomas, Tucker Co., W. Va., Box 104. "I was bothered with kidney trouble and my whole system was out of order; had no appetite. A friend of mine told me to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I did so and the first bottle restored my appetite. I took six bottles of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and now of the 'Pleasant Pellets' and feel like a new person."

IN GREAT BRITAIN.

Mr. A. W. Grindley's Report Concerning Canadian Food Products.

The following is the report of Mr. A. W. Grindley, Agent of the Department of Agriculture in Great Britain, regarding Canadian Food Products in Great Britain.

Canadian Food Products are often sold in Great Britain to the consumer, as being the product of Great Britain or the product of some other country.

The produce of which may command a higher price on the markets. The only thing that can be done is for the Canadian shippers to brand "Canada" or "Canadian" on everything and advertise freely in the British trade journals. A few Canadian firms have followed this plan and to-day their brands are in demand and are known as "Canadian Produce," but this position has only been gained by spending a lot of money in advertising.

Financially, what the average shipper looks for and if he receives more money by having his goods sold as the product of some other country, he very naturally pockets the higher price and says nothing. It is a "very slow game" getting the British people to change their ideas or tastes. To "play the game" one must have lots of time and spend money freely—this the average Canadian exporter cannot afford to do.

As Canadian goods are gradually, if slowly, gaining in favor. This gain in favor is chiefly due to the fine quality of the Canadian goods. International competition is so keen to capture the British market that there is no room to try "fake games" and I am sorry to say the only way to make some Canadian shippers honest is by Act of Parliament. Great good has already been done by "The Fruit Marks Act."

Our dairy products are landing each season in more perfect condition—this is due to the close inspection kept in Canada over the manufacture of cheese and butter, to the improvement in the cheese factories and creameries, but also largely due to the "Government Cool Curing Rooms" for cheese, and the improved "cool" and "cold" storage for food products on the various steamship lines running from Canada to the different British ports.
