Deputy Mothers

They were Land Girls who gave up land working when the armistice began so that they might not keep the men returning home out of a job. I had three children. The Land Girls had no ties—if one excepts a large, much-petted black cat and a town servant who "didn't dare to stay in a house by herself." My husband was 200 miles away on the other side of England, where his work was—and his home wasn't.

They suggested the job of deputy mothers, saying that as they could no longer help the men of England they might as well help the women.

They would arrive one afternoon, pump my bicycle, push me out of the house, and tell me to go for a "tootle round." As I pedalled gladly away down the hill, my last glimpse of them would reveal one putting on Tomkins Toodles' boots, the other fastening the Cherub in his perambulator, while Puck waited on the doorstep with trowel and basket, ready to go off and dig up primroses.

At another time they would appear in the evening when the three Pyjama Kiddies were just tucked up in bed, spread their letters, notepaper, ink and pens on the table and tell me to "make myself scarce" as they were going to deputize. "You can stay out till ten o'clock, to-night, Mary Ann," they would say from my doorstep.

Even in the morning they would turn up and take the Toddler and Puck for a walk, while I did the housework.

They were not angels from heaven (though they seemed like that to me); they were just practical women who had enough humanity to help a mother in a practical way. And in almost every town and village in the country there are women and girls with plenty of spare time who could take on the work of deputy mothers.

The mother of two or three—or more—children, very likely servantless, is a shockingly overworked person, and a nation that overworks these women has to pay the penalty either in a decreasing birth-rate or in enfeebled children.

If some of the women and girls of the "leisured class" gave up a few hours every week from their tennis, shopping or visiting, it would make all the difference in the world, and incidentally, to thousands of the nation's children.

Feel the Serge of Abounding Youth

Age is sickness—gradual disintegration of the tissues which comprise your vital organs—your nerves, heart, liver, kidneys, brain. Each of these organs depends on the internal secreting fluids of certain glands. When such glands become lax in their functioning, through under or over-secretion, you are sick. Unless these glands are aided to resume proper functioning, the tissues of the vital organs gradually wear and crumble away. You are old in health, if not in years, and old-fashioned methods of treating sickness are admittedly helpless. Your days are numbered unless you get at the seat of the trouble by direct action, and that is by revitalizing and restoring the glands to their proper functioning.

Advancing Newspaper Rates

Faced with the fierce competition which the advancing costs impose, newspapers, more particularly those in the United States, have increased the price of their papers to subscribers. The one-cent newspapers has largely disappeared. The five cent Sunday newspaper now costs 10 cent. It can be but a matter of time when subscription prices of Canadian newspaper must advance too. A stiffening of advertising rates in the United States and in Canada has followed as a matter of course and some newspapers of THE ACADIAN'S class in other towns finding they cannot make contracts for news print, for labor or supplies of any kind, are in their turn finding themselves compelled in self defense to decline to make contracts for advertising space, but instead are selling space subject to a change in rates without notice.

Canada and the League.

The New York World is one among many representative American journals which gives friendly support to views Hon. N. W. Rowell has expressed in regard to American reservations and the peace treaty. Speaking as President of the Privy Council, in the name of the Canadian government and Canadian people, Hon. Mr. Rowell emphatically declared that if the United States recognition of the treaty is based on "any condition impairing the independence of Canada" then would Canada refuse assent and withdraw from the league. In assenting that Canada's position is sound, the New York World says:

Here we have an ultimatum for London no less than for Washington and there is a great deal of reason behind it. Canada has earned its place in the world, and, unlike the senatorial representatives of its powerful neighbor, is not afraid to assume the attendant responsibilities. In beginning its career as a nation by challenging both the United States and Great Britain it has set a smart pace for itself.

Whatever may be the final decision of the United States, it is taken for granted that the British government will withhold assent to any reservations which would deprive the self-governing dominions of "their place in the world." Hon. Mr. Rowell has stated our position in a way which every Canadian must approve. It is a satisfaction to see that his clear and unequivocal utterances command respect in the neighboring republic.

Children Cry for Fletcher's

CASTORIA

Fletcher's Castoria is strictly a remedy for Infants and Children. Foods are specially prepared for babies. A baby's medicine is even more essential for Baby. Remedies primarily prepared for grown-ups are not interchangeable. It was the need of a remedy for the common ailments of Infants and Children that brought Castoria before the public after years of research, and no claim has been made for it that its use for over 30 years has not proven.

What is CASTORIA?

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrup. It is pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. For more than thirty years it has been in constant use for the relief of Constipation, Flatulency, Wind Colic and Diarrhoea; allaying Feverishness arising therefrom, and by regulating the Stomach and Bowels, aids the assimilation of Food; giving healthy and natural sleep.
