ASKING "CONSENT." TTER FROM ISARELLA PLINT

F told you, dear Pa, in my last-Oh, no, I believe I did not-The thing that one site down to write Is the very thing always forgot-But now I will tell, and perhaps, That I didn't before is as well, For thtil we decided, you know, There was nothing especial to tell.

And 'tis only a month or six weeks— Twas the night which I wroe you about, When we walked by the silvery beach, Was that walk from my letter left out? O' then I have got to go back You'll ascuse me, I hope, for the slips Of my pen-when the body's couldsed, The pen stammers just like the lips.

Well, the party that went out with us, Had left us alone on the shore---Had left w alone on the shore— I wonder they were in such hasts— 'Twas a trick never served us before. And we stood on the hask and looked down, In silence long—long on the sea-I mean that I did—his dear eyes Were fix'd all the while u

He adored—and he said 'twas all false, That story of Clarises Lee— I knew so befores, though I'd wept— How mischievens people can be! Your money, he said, was to him As the dew to the fathomiess tide, I have beard his own went like the dow, But the tattlers undoubtedly lied.

For he spake of his owing a mill, Connected with which is a bank, The one manufacturing cash, And the other for issuing plank. And his other for issuing plank. And his farm where he constantly calls, Somewhere out in the State of New York, On the way to Niagara Falls.

I know this would gratify you, And so I consented—or rather I promis'd to write for consent— Which you won't refuse, will you, dear father? They'd fill your head full with their tales, But he swears they are false, if his aamo— (Whata beautiful name for a man)— Magustus Frederick Græme.

I'm old enough now to engage, The school is most out, and I'm sure You'd hate an old maid, and he says Sixteen is the prettiest age. So you won't be vexed, will you? now don't, I wish you could come to our-when-But I'll bring him home soon from our jaunt, And I know you'll be satisfied then.

And now, while I think, dearest Pa. And now, while I think, deares ra, Please send by the very first mail-(He's momently looking for fands, Bat says they may possibly fail.) Some five handred dollars—you must I need it for trinkets and things, And your letter to Iasbel Grømo, Will find as at Lebanon Springs.

Darieties.

How TO TURN A WHITE DARLIA BLUE.—I have been told, but have never tried the experiment, by a celebrated cultivator of Dahlias in Belgium, that he will be able, in the course of a year or two, to produces blue one by keeping constantly watered the root of a white one with a solution of sulphate of iron. The sulphate of iron turns hydrangess blue, and why not other white flowers as well ! Of course the solution must be very weak.—"Inquirer" in Gardener's Chronicle.
