NEW YORK, Jan. 26.
The Prince of Wales kicked the winning goal at the Association Football match for Magdalen College eleven against Keble College second eleven. His shot was the only score in the game.

DOMODOSSOLA, Italy, Jan. 26.
Jean D'elovucci, the Peruvian aviator, flew across the Swiss Alps from the Brig in the canton of Valais-Javalais, to this city, in less than half an hour. He ascended at Brig exactly on the stroke of noon, landing here at 12.25 p.m.

LONDON, Jan. 26.
The first report of the Radium Institute, published in the British Medical Journal, indicates the addition of a long list of minor non-malignant conditions, such as birthmarks, eczema, tubercular glands, etc., which radium often cures. It almost always improves the health of patients suffering from cancer of a deadly type. Out of 539 patients treated, 53 were apparently cured, 28 certainly cured, 245 improved, 70 not improved, 88 abandoned the treatment and 55 died. By "apparently cured" are meant those cases of cancer where all traces of the original disease have disappeared, and no signs of any recurrence, so far as can be ascertained. Those who abandoned treatment include those cases in which the patient had to leave London, or could not afford to travel repeatedly from the country to the Institute.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.
Chairman Adamson predicts that one of the first requests of President-elect Wilson will be for the repeal of the free passage provision, applying to American ships in the Panama Canal. If Secretary Knox succeeds in avoiding or postponing Britain's demands, it is said by Adamson that the President will undoubtedly remove all foundation for illogical claims of those people who, professing themselves opposed to subsidies, are still in favor of discrimination. England may justly claim that if the Canal is to be used as an instrument to distribute subsidies under treaty, these must be equal to all nations. The true issue is, shall we rob our own people by unjust discrimination to enrich a coastwise shipping trust. I would, not, says Mr. Adamson, at all object to a brush with England, if we had just cause, but it looks very foolish and unprofitable to maintain any sort of a row with her to defend the immoral and unjust robbery of our treasury and the masses of our people to confer benefits upon special interests.

VIENNA, Jan. 26.
Advices from Constantinople say that the Young Turks Party, is, thus far, backed only by a part of the Army, and that the majority of the Army, including the older officers in high positions and the majority of the influential clergy are against the Young Turks. Enver Bey's following, adds the despatch, consists of several hundred officers, infatuated by the cry of liberation of the sacred places, and these by men who are likely to turn against the Young Turks, if they do not succeed in saving Adrianople.

BERLIN, Jan. 26.
In view of the suddenness of the change in the Turkish situation, officials here believe that the new administration should be given time to work out an answer to the joint note of the Powers. It is understood that the Balkan officials hold the same view, and will not crowd the Young Turks. Regarding the proposed naval demonstrations by France, it is believed that they are not authorized by the French government, and the opinion is expressed that there is no likelihood that the consent of all the Powers could be obtained for such action.

LONDON, Jan. 26.
The Balkan plenipotentiaries, who have received full powers from their Governments appointed a committee to-day to draft a note to the Turkish plenipotentiaries, explaining why the Peace Conference must now be considered as broken off. It is hoped that the draft will be ready for the approval of the full delegation on Monday. This action on the part of the Allies is one of a series of well considered forms of pressure by which the Balkan delegates hope to obtain their object without resorting to war. The meeting to-day lasted for an hour and a half, and the course followed was given earnest consideration. Two distinct views were manifested, one for an immediate rupture of negotiations, with a view to resumption of war, and the other favoring a temporizing policy in order to avoid any irrevocable steps. The latter course triumphed, and a committee was appointed, consisting of one member from each delegation.

HER PERFECT WORK.

The pretty trained nurse bent over her patient, a young curate of somewhat impressionable disposition, who was beginning to get better.

"Shall I turn your head?" she asked, in her low, kind voice.

"No, thank you, Nurse," returned the convalescent, with a beaming smile. "You have turned it already."

"KEEP YER 'EAD!"

At a local match, the first of the season, two batsmen of the stone-walling type became partners, and for a full hour gave an exhibition of how cricket ought not to be played. At last one of them, more by accident than design, made a hit that very nearly resulted in a run. Derisive cheers came from the weary spectators, followed by a shout from the local butcher, who had been impatiently waiting for a knock.

"Keep yer 'ead, Bill! Keep yer 'ead!" he yelled. "If yer git so bloomin' reckless we shall hev to wake the scorer!"

A WAY OUT.

It was in a little village in Warwickshire, the election of parish councillors had been fought, and John Smith, farm laborer, had been returned head of the poll. When the time fixed for the first meeting of the council arrived there were only four members present, the weather being very tempestuous. After waiting a little while in the hope of additional members turning up, the clerk declared that nothing could be done, as there was no quorum. Whereupon John Smith rose and said: "I propose that Mr. Roberts, of Iron farm, shall be the quorum for the night, so that we can get along with the business!"

The Home Arrives.

The S. S. Home, Capt. Hardy, arrived here at 3 p.m. yesterday after giving up the Bay of Islands-Battle of service. The ship came here by way of Port aux Basques and Placencia and brought a full freight here for the Reid N.M. Company. She was into St. Lawrence to make temporary repairs to her draft engine, and had to shelter at Trepansey out of Friday's snow storm. She had it very rough on her last trip north, and the Straits being blocked with ice did not get further than Port Saunders. She will lay up here for an overhaul and repairs.

The Full Dress Suit.

BY H. L. RANN.

The full dress suit is an instrument of torture which men climb into once a year in order to keep peace in the family. It is an expensive, t w o-piece garment, and if neglected for any length of time loses its shape faster than an obesity patient. When a man goes into a closet to dig up a dress suit he wore at the wedding of his wife's sister two years ago last Thanksgiving, he will find that he can't take a full breath in it without ripping off several high-priced buttons.

Men do not like to wear full dress suits, but are obliged to or stand a suit for divorce. For some reason or other a woman is never so well pleased with her husband's appearance as when he is clad in a swallow-tail coat and a sickly smile. He may be so bow-legged that he can walk over a flour barrel without getting out of step, but she will hide his Prince Albert coat in a woodshed and employ other subterfuges in order to drive him into full dress. There is no more pitiful, soul-harrowing sight in the universe than a lean, curly-legged citizen feeling around for the pockets in a full dress coat and finally winding up by secreting them in his shirt front, and yet our laws offer no redress.

Nearly all of the de luxe full dress trousers are distinguished from ordinary $2 pants by silk stripes, so that a man won't make a mistake and put them on to empty the ashes in. As the style in pants change every thirty minutes, the owner of a full dress suit is never invited anywhere without having to invest in a new pair of trousers.

The tuxedo is a bob-tailed edition of the full dress coat, and was invented by an English lord who became tired of parting his coat tails in the middle with a graceful flourish, every time he wanted to sit down. Unlike the full dress article, it can be worn at breakfast or lunch without causing the members of the Four Hundred to glare at the wearer in a temperature of 30 degrees below zero.

Teeth, the molars are not preserved, but quickly decay. A diet of hard biscuits and chop bones is the food which should be given to growing, young people of to-day.

"Personally I think that it will be a good thing for everybody's comfort when the process of evolution has diminished the number of our teeth, or even, from certain points of view, totally abolished them."

"Wisdom teeth are cut at all manner of times nowadays owing to the general narrowness of the jaw."

"A man of fifty-two told me a few weeks ago that he had just cut a wisdom tooth which, owing to the removal of other molars, had at last been able to show itself above the gum."

In Bad State.

At 8 a.m. yesterday Officers O'Flaherty and Sheppard found an unfortunate named Mark Parsons, of Bonaventure, wandering about the streets in a bad state. The man was almost frozen with the cold, and for some time past has been sleeping about in places and his socks had no soles in them and he suffered intensely. The guard in the lock up supplied him with footwear and when he had partaken of some warm drinks he was all right. The man is an imbecile, will not remain home and if allowed to wander about will come to grief.
