The Chicago Herald has the following Washington dispatch, based on an inter-amble about British misgovernment, bar-barities and outrages. The English may have made mistakes in Ireland, and grievous ones at that. Anything they have done in the way of cruelty has been called forth by more outrageous acts on the part of the Irish. Cromwell himself was, in part, justified for his bloodthirsty policy. Prior to his advent in the island there was a general massacre of English, conducted under circumstances which made retalliation in those times accusable.

"The Irish have been treated as well as they deserved. Everything done to improve their condition has been received in a surly spirit. The presence of the British in their midst was owing to the importuin their indet was owing to the importu-nity of one of their numerous kings, who, unable to manage matters for himself, be-sought the aid of Henry II. to subjugate his royal rivals. MANN, THE MURDERER

POSTPONEMENT OF HISTRIAL TILL

OTTAWA, May 1-Frederick Mann, before the assize court at L'Orignal. A true bill was returned against him. The attendance of spectators was very large, and when the boy murderer appeared in the dock, his innocent looking countenance enlisted for him a certain amount of sympathy, but as the blood-curdling charges in the indict-ment were read, recollections of the terrible the blood-curdling charges in the indictment were read, recollections of the terrible deed were revived.

While reading the indictment, the clerk's voice at a few points was inaudible to Mann, and he cooly ordered the charges to be read louder and to all of them he pleaded "not guilty."

On the case being called by Judge Senkler, Mr. J. Maxwell, a lawyer of L'Orignal, who has undertaken to defend the prisoner, made application for a postponement of the trial until the next assizes. His grounds were the absence of two material witnesses for the defence, Amelia Hale, eldest sister of the prisoner, who lives in Tewksbury, England, and Wm. Cooke, who was almost fatally assaulted by Mann with an axe at the time the latter was perpetrating his awful butchery. Mr. Maxwell also set up the plea of hereditary insanity on the father's side and stated that he desired to have the prisoner further examined by a medical expert:

Dr. Buck, superintendent of the äsyltim at London, Ont., was to have been present, but could not attend. Dr. Howard of Longus Point, a very material witness to the defence, the counsel said was subposed but could not attend, owing to indisposition. Counsel for defence read two affidavits made by Amelia Hale and Mary Ann Matin, mother of the prisoner, the substance of both of which were similar. It was set forth in the sworn statements that Frederick Mann was subject to hereditary insanity. When two years of age he was statesked with snallpox, from the effects of which disease he has since suffered severely in the head. At the age of 11 he was apprenticed to a baker at Tewkesbury, and on March 30, 1877, while delivering bread the horse ran away and he was thrown violently to the ground from the cart. He suvtained a serious fracture of the skull. The surgeon who dressed his head remarked that it would have been better for the unfortunate boy had the accident proved fatal. Sarah Mann had one brother, who died in a lunstic asylum. A neice of Amelia Hale has been confined in an insane asylum for nine years brother, who died in a lunatic asylum. A neice of Amelia Hale has been confined in an insane asylum for nine years past. Another neice attempted to commit suicide at the age of 16, and is at present in a home at Bristol. Mrs. Moore, the wife of a barrister at Tewkesbary, has written that she frequently heard complaints from Mann's mother about his strange conduct, and after the accident to his head she stated he seemed a great deal worse. Bev. Mr. Robson, vicar of Tewkesbury, has also written to the same effect as Mrs. Moore.

Mr. H. S. Maclonald, stewn prosecutor, objected to a postponement, contending that the plea of insanity was intended to be set up at the outset by the defendant's counsel, and it was the latter's duty to prepare for that line of defence. There was, however, he said, one good ground for postponement and that was the absence of Wm. Cooke, as he wished his presence fully as much if not more than the counsel for the defence.

In reply to his lordship, Dr. Ewing, jr., i attending physician on Wm. Cooke, stated that the sufferer could be conveyed to the court only at the risk of his life. His lord-life was the latter of latter of the latter of the latter of the latter of the latter of before Chancellor Boyd yesterday at Osgoode hall. As has been stated in The World, the plaintiff is asking for alimony, to which the defendant replies that a Missouri court pronounced a decree of divorce absolute, retoring him to all the rights and privileges of an unmarried person, and that the plaintiff was not therefore entitled to alimony. cohabit, and the intention on her part that this should be permanent, for she determined to widen the gulf by coming to reside with her brother-in-law, Mr. J. B. Magurn, in Toronto, and to remain here permanently. (2) That there was no fraind practised on her in procuring the divorce, as she was made aware of the intention and personally served with the papers. (3) That the decree is binding, and must be treated just as if all matters material to its existence were proved, for they must assume that the Missouri court satisfied itself that the hisband was an innocent and injured person. (4) That if the decree is to be attacked at all it must be attacked directly and in the court which granted it, although the time for that has long expired. (5) That the plaintiff is bound by concurrence and acquiescence (for or in five years) in the divorce, thus tacitly adopting the decree. (6) Public policy demands that this decree should not be questioned, as the rights of innocent parties had intervened. The husband, Mr. Blake said, by continued residence in St. Lonie for nine years acquired the right to appeal to the law of the land The husband, Mr. Blake said, by continued residence in St. Louis for nine years acquired the right to appeal to the law of the land when such was violated. Having done so, the decree issued was certainly binding there and also, according to the recent decision of Farnie v. Farnie in the House of Lords, in any country in the world. On the general duestion of recognizing the divorce in Canada Mr. Blake said: "Where there has been a knowledge on the other side of during which the decree was considered binding and was unimpeached you can come into another court and collaterally attack it and have it discharged. In a recent decision in England the court remarked that such a doctrine would only make more trouble and though it might be revenge would not be reparation."

THE PHENIX PARK CAR DRIVER FOUND NOT GUILTY,

Failure of the Informers' Evidence to Com-nect Him With the Murders—An Elo-quent Address for the Defence. Dublin, May 1 .- Fitzharris, charged Phonix park murders, has been acquitted No witnesses were called by the defence The evidence against Fitzharris was tha ried, and two children have been the issue of this marriage. Mr. McLennan, Q. C., for the plaintiff, argues that although the defendant married the first wife in Detroit in 1870, that his domicile of origin still adhered, and that this was therefore a Canadian marriage. The divorce obtained in St. Louis in 1877, he argued was obtained by fraud, inasmuch as the desertion by the wife, charged; was untrue; and moreover that a foreign court had no right to dissolve a Canadian marriage except for grounds good in Canada.

The evidence against Fitzharris was that given by the informers. He was besides identified by independent witnesses, who swore they saw him in the park on May 6. McInerney made an eloquent address for the defence. He stated the accusation that the prisoner was in the park with a knowledge of the errand of the murderers rested on the evidence of the informers alone. He said although Peter Carey swore the prisoner recommed the circumstances of the murders to ohim, his narrative of the association differed from ascertained facts. He closed with a pathetic appeal to the jury to restore the poor man to his starving family with the good name which was his sole possession.

dence had been adduced to show the pris-oner was aware of the plot against Mr. Burke before May 5. The earlier meetings which he attended were held to plot against the life of Mr. Forster, and had no connec-tion with the present charge. It was clear that Fitzharris was in the park when the murders occurred, but if the jury doubted that he was guilty of the knowledge of the mission of the mea he drove, they were bound to acquit him.

After the verdict had been rendered, Fitzharris was taken to jail to await trial on a supplementation.
