

the "Missionary Romance," by Dr. George Smith, is continued with good effect. A subject which needs continual treatment, viz., "Christ's Teaching About Money and the Rule of Christian Giving," is well presented by Rev. James Johnson, of England. The brief items throughout the magazine are valuable.

The Review of Reviews. New York: 13 Astor Place. $2.50 a year.

The May number has an illustrated account of about sixty American and foreign conventions, expositions, summer universities, and other important events of the month: a character sketch of the famous correspondent, M. de Blowitz; an article on the author of "Tom Brown"; also a treatise on "Vacation Camps and Boys' Republics," together with copious editorial comments on the "Progress of the World," and the substance of leading articles from prominent periodicals. Current History in Caricature is always good.

The Religious Review of Reviews. London (63 Paternoster Row) and New York.

This Review of April 15th gives a large amount of interesting matter regarding the late Archdeacon Dennison, and of Mashonaland, with the Rt. Rev. Dr. Gaul, its bishop; also of the new temperance crusade under Mr. Tennyson Smith. Various other subjects of a religious nature are well presented. A brief sermon by Rev. Prebendary Stanley Leathes, D.D., on the "Promise of the Comforter," is well worth reading.

The Homiletic Review. Funk & Wagnalls Company, New York and Toronto.

The April number has several good and suggestive sermons, together with much helpful matter for the poor, wearied parson. The expository section, the pastoral section, social section, and miscellaneous section, afford good food for thought in accordance with the subject they each and all represent.

The American Church Sunday School Magazine. Philadelphia. $1.25 a year.

The May number has several suggestive articles. Indeed, the reading matter of this magazine is always good, and shows careful selection of subjects and able treatment of them.

Germania. A. W. Spanhoofd, Manchester, N.H. This is a well-arranged monthly periodical for the study of the German language. Each number contains valuable assistance for students of the tongue.
