DR. NICHOLS'S

WROUGHT IRON FURNACE

THE principle of substituting Wrought Iron for Cast Iron in the construction of heating apparatus, as advanced by Dr. James H. Nichols five years ago, has steadily worked its way into public favor, and the Nichols Furnace has achieved in its sale and operation a wonderful success. The many advantages offered in this form of construction appeal at once to the common sense of the purchaser. The question of heating and ventilating houses is one of such vital importance, in a sanitary as well as economical sense, that none can afford to disregard the merits of such a Furnace as will afford

PURE AIR,

Free from Dust and all Noxious and Poisonous Gases.

Descriptive Pamphlet containing matter interesting to all users of Hot Air Furnaces, will be sent on application.
