

THE GREAT BALL NOZZLE SYRINGE.

A comparison of the BALL NOZZLE SYRINGE with other Syringes shows that it has advantages due entirely to the form of the stream itself: it diffuses a soft, gentle, conical-shaped film of water, reaching every part of the vaginal cavity, cleansing thoroughly the cul-de-sac and removing every particle of foreign matter, the presence of which is the cause of disease, pain and suffering. Its effect is one of gentle bathing or spraying, rather than one of percussion, such as follows the application of a solid, straight stream. This absence of force is absolutely necessary in applications to sensitive organs.

The stream is curved in every direction and is a hollow stream; it is therefore impossible for it to enter a practically straight canal. There is no Syringe in use up to the present time that will produce such perfect irrigation as the BALL NOZZLE SYRINGE.
