

A WORTHY TRIBUTE

To Life Insurance as an institution, and to this Company in particular, is the deep and unflagging interest which the late Sir George Ross took in its advancement. He was President of the Temperance and General Life from its inception in 1886, to its amalgamation with The Manufacturers Life in 1901, and of the latter Company from that date until the time of his death.

During his long tenure of office he continually brought to bear all that business acumen and foresight for which he was justly noted, thereby contributing greatly to the solidity and permanence of the position which the Company occupies to-day.
