MUCH TROUBLE IN THE METHODIST CAMP

Over the Treatment by Mission Board of Mrs. Large, Now in Japan

Why Mrs. S. K. Gooderham, the Old and Revered President of the Woman's Missionary Society Since 1882, Resigned From Her Position-The Recall of Mrs. Large From Japan just Be Explained by the Star Chamber Executive, Which Has Been Sitting Sphinx-Like in Silence for Some Time Pas Mrs. Gooderham's Resignation Is Now First Published Having Been Suppressed by the Powers That Were -Both Parties Have Supporters.

both among the Methodist and sister sects erning the division of opinion, so great division indeed that it might be called dissension, between the Woman's Mission-ary Society of the Methodist Church and parent missionary society, to which the Woman's Society is practically in subjec-tion. Up till the present time nothing de-finite has been known except that the old Missionary Society, a position which she had held with honor since 1882, had &ndered her resignation. Mrs. S. K. Gooderham was not the woman to take such a stand after all these years, and to sever herself from a cause in which her whole heart is interested, as her life has shown. without grave cause. She is so imbued with the true missionary spirit that her life, especially during the last 15 years, has been spent in advancing the cause of missions abroad. Five years ago she went at her own expense to inspect the missions in Japan in which she was especially in terested, and she returned satisfied with

The Murder of Mr. Large. All was going well there, and splenda work was being done. Then came the memorable murder of Mr. Large by some ruf ficuly Japs, in which Mrs. Large was nearly killed in her attempted defence of her husband. She bears the marks of horrible sword cuts in her face to-day, and is minus two or three fingers of her right hand. Forand the next stage of the affair was the recall of Mrs. Large for reasons which were then unexplained and which are aprently as inexplicable to-day as they were en. She was detained on half furlough to the other till finally she was in despair;

Why the President Resigned. For this reason and the principle it in volves, the President of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Methodist Church reand it remains with the Executive of the Missionary Society to answer her. It is

Missionary Society to answer her. It is now published for the first time:

To the Executive Committee of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Methodist Church of Canada:

Dearly Beloved Sisters,—As most of you are aware, I have been officially connected with our Woman's Missionary Society since 1882. When the first auxiliary in the city of Toronto was formed I was induced refluctantly to become the president of it, and when the board held its first annual meeting I had the honor to be elected president of the society, an office which by the kindness of my sisters composing the board from year to year I have continued to hold to the present. I accapted the office with a deep sense of responsibility, but relying upon the guidance of the Holy Spirit and sustained by the consclousness that my eye was single, that my one desire was to glorify God and to promote the interests of His church, I was willing to serve and suffer in so good a cause.

My connection with this work has promote the interests of His church, I was willing to serve and suffer in so good a cause.

My connection with this work has ben a benediction to me personally. It has brought me into closer communion with Christ, and into deper sympathy with the work for which He laid down His life. It has brought me into association with not a few excellent people, both in my own church and other churches, many of whom I reckon amongst my dearest friends. In view of all these things, the Woman's Missionary Society and the noble women by whom its business has been carried on have a warm place in my affection, and though I unfortunately find myself out of harmony with some of them in the opinions which I hold as to what is due to our society, I shall rejoice in their usefulness and success in every good work for our Master. The resolutions passed by the Executive Committee of the General Board of Missions and the Executive Committee of the Woman's Missionary Society at their last sessions in respect to Mrs. Large and her return to her work in Japan produced in me a profound feeling of disappointment, grief and alarm. Though I believe that the treatment which Mrs. Large has received admits of no justification or excuse, that it has been wrong and only wrong from first to last, and though it is not easy to find language too strong by which to characterize a course of procedure which has inflicted such prolonged suffering on an honored missionary, who I believe was as certainly called of God to that work as any minister in that country—especially when this mischief is done by an arbitrary exercise of authority, without any alleged reason or form of law.

But there is isomething even more serious than this involved in these resolutions. They not only endorse and justify all this, but they bind the Woman's Missionary Society to submit to this sort of treatment of its missionaries in all time to come. If the interpretation of article viii. of the constitution of the Woman's Missionary Society, upon which these resolutions are based, be correct, "harmony with the authorities of the missionary society" means absolute subjection to it, and "the authorities of the Missionary Society in wear a right to arrest any of the ladies employed by the Woman's Missionary Society in their work in any of the ladies employed by the Woman's Missionary Society in their work in any of the fields to which they have been appointed, and demand their recall without bringing any charge against them or giving any reasons for their recall. Now this assumption on any Society in my judgment is not in harmony with Methodism, with Protestantism, or with the spirit of the age, that assigns to woman, not the position of a slave, but of a helpmeet and coworker with man in carrying on the safing work of the church. What woman inwardly moved by the Holy Ghost to take upon her the office and work of a missionary will consent to leave home and friends and go out into a distant strange land, knowing all the while that after she has gone through the drudgery of acquiring a difficult strange language and otherwise fitting herself for her life demantion. During the time she had spend years and this show of fullity after long wear, and this show of quality after long wear is something that through her hands; she had spent years in training and in acquiring the language, and being a widow with a child to support, it was absolutely necessary that something should be done.

The Executive Silent.

But the Executive Committee of the clurch kept a sphinx-like silence, maintaining their right to keep her in Canada, because section viii. of the constitution of the Wissionary Society lays it down that the Executive of the Missionary Society has the right to arrest of recall any of the ladies employed by the Woman's Missionary Society has the right to arrest of the work in any of the fields to which they have been appointed without preferring any charge against them or giving any reasons for their recall.

Garrison, N. Y.. Oct. 25.—The grey dawn twenty-four hours after the frightful happening of yesterday broke upon a scene of greater litter and property destruction than yesterday's sun and last night's torchlight displayed. The weary gangs of wreckers were relieved early this morning by fresh ones, and the work of getting the chains from the derricks upon the submerged cars was derricks upon the submerged cars was was pulled from the bottom of the river and placed on the shore it added to the picturesque though distressing sight. When the wreckers got sufficient tackle on the sleeping car Glen Alpine, to drag her up, there was much excitement, and speculation, as it was believed that there must surely be some bodies in this car, the most deeply submerged of the lot. When the car had been placed on the scow and the water had been run out of it a careful searching party went.

The scene at the wreck at daylight this morning was a dismal one. The day's work was just starting and a light drizzle of rain fadling at intervals, which made it decidedly unpleasant for those whose business kept them at the scene. The work of searching for bodies had been temporarily suspended at 2 o'clock this morning. after the parlor car Glen Alpine had been hoisted. As the occupants of the other two sleepers in the river had been accounted for by the conductor and porters, the fact was established that none of the Wagner passengers were killed. vigorously prosecuted. The Sleeper Hermes.

"The car Hermes was just ahead of mine and had plunged into deeper water, so that the end was completely submerged, while the other was up against the end of ours. I saw the people hurrying out of the high end, and I am quite positive that before the car settled into deep water we got everybody out. Some of the people were scantily dressed, because their clothes could not be found in the dark. They hurried away to the other cars and I think went to New York.

"After we had reached all the sleeping car passengers, we saw some people from the combination car swimming in the river and we helped them out. I am afraid that some people got out of the other cars all right, but were drowned because of the cold water cramping them."
