THAT INDIAN SILVER CHAIN.

Rev. Rockwell Clancy Writes The World From Allahabad, India, in Reference to It.

WHAT IS DONE WITH THE MONEY

the Allahabad Orphanage, the Allahabad, India, May 26, 189).

Editor World: In your paper of March 2 there appeared a letter signed by Steven L. Evans of Burk's Falls, calling for an investigation with reference to the Indian missionary silver chain. You will kindly grant me the opportunity of explaining how "The Chain" began and the work being supported by the money received. The Indian famine of 1896 and 1897 is known by the entire reading world to have been the most terrible of the century. Allahabad, midway between Bombay and Calenta, on the East Indian Railway, lies in the territory affected by the famine. In the Allahabad district, of which I am presiding elder, we have six circuits with ten centres, where native preachers reside. During my visits to these stations, I came to know that there was much sunfering among the villagers from the failure of harvests, and we began to pie.

People Began to Die. For three or four seasons there was excessive drought, so that the people reaped little; and many of them had become very poor before the real famine of 1896-97. They had no reserve supplies to fall back upon, and when complete failure of the harvests of 96 came the people began to die of starvation. Our hearts were deeply touched by the awful sufferings of the little children, and my wife and I resolved to open our mission to all destitute children who might be brought to us. Soon they came in scores, brought by our native preachers, and all our available, accommodation was crowded. We then made arrangements to sond these children to other stations in our own and other missions to make room for new-comers.

More Children Every Day. in large numbers. We then made arrangements with the railway companies to ship them to the different mission stations open to receive them at the rate of four children for a single fare. During the famine about 700 children passed through our hands, and about 500 were sent to different stations: Peshawar, Meerut, Aliganh, Ajmere, Muttra, Cawnpore, Lucknow, Bareilly, Poona, Chunar and Calcutta.

Their Condition Indescribable.

Their Condition Indescribable. Their Condition indescribable. The condition of these children was indescribable. Many of them were so emaciated that they were not able to walk. They were naked and diseased. Large numbers died after being received into our orphanages, and after two years many of the children are still suffering from the effects of starvation during those awful famine days. Where the Aid Came From.

Where the Aid Came From.

When we began this work we had no mioney of our own, and during the entire famine we never received a dollar from the Government, nor from any of the funds sent by different countries to the Government of India. It was entirely faith work, and God sent all the money we needed through friends in foreign countries. We received several large donations from the English and American residents of St. Petersburg, Russia. A great deal came from England, Abstralia, the United States and Canada; so that in addition to caring for these hun-Abstrana, the United States and Canada, so that in addition to caring for these hundreds of children, we were able to distribute money and grain among thousands of people in the villages.

Corn From America.

Corn From America.

A large consignment of American corn was sent to us by Dr. Hobbs on the arrival of the steamship City of Everett at Calcutta, laden with corn from San Francisco, We distributed this corn to between 15,000 and 20,000 people. Seven hundred people a day were given help in our mission compound. Through the generosity of friends in many lands we were able to save the lives of hundreds. For this we take no credit to ourselves, as we only distributed what was sent to us. We received much help and sympathy from Mr. Julian Hawthorne, the famous American author, who was sent out by the proprietor of The Cosmopolitan to investigate the famine. He was our guest for several days, and I took him to a large number of villages in the famine district. In his articles to The Cosmopolitan, he very kindly commended our work, and asked the readers of that magazine to send us money.

Special Appenis Were Made.

Special Appeals Were Made.

So long as the famine lasted we received large sums of money for distribution. But when the Indian Government announced to the world that the famine was at an end and that funds were no longer required, cur receipts for the support of the children fell off rapidly, and we had to make special appeals for money to support them. I wrote to my sister, Mrs. Van Luven of Napanee, asking her to interest people in our orphanage; and it was then that she started "The Indian Missionary Silver Chain." When last I received a report of the amount collected, it was $345. A very large number of people have very kindly helped us to care for these children, and through "The Silver Chain." we have received a large number of scholarships, which I hope may be permanent. Special Appeals Were Made.

200 Boys and Girls. present we have nearly 200 boys, girls widows in our Allahabad orphanages.

Serious Runaway.

Our Missionary Society provides 50 scholarships a year, and the rest is purely faith work. It costs $15 a year to support a child, and for the next eight or ten years we shall have to care for most of the children. They are being taught to work. Both boys and girls make their own clothing, and a large number of them are learning to do fine needlework, which will enable them to support themselves in after years. We have an industrial farm, and in connection with that a wood yard, with Allahabad City as a market. Every child is receiving a liberal education in the vernacular, and the brightest boys and girls will be trained for village teachers. We hope that many of them will become preachers and bible readers. Already they are doing missionary work among the children in our Sunday schools, taught by the older boys and teachers of our orphanage. All of the boys have been sent out for their vacation to our farm colony, and every evening they yisit some village to sling and preach the Gospel. There is no department of our mission work which gives greater promise than that among the children.

Donations May Be Sent.

A Magic Pili—Dyspepsia is a foe with which men are constantly grappling, but cannot exterminate. Subdued, and to all appearances vanquished, in one, it makes its appearance in another direction. ket Saturday morning. John Hood, a farmer from Freeelton, left his horse standing near the corner of Merrick and Macnabstreets, in charge of his 5-year-old son Charlie. The horse took fright shortly after Mr. Hood left it and ran north on Macnabstreet. The wagon was loaded with potatoes, and these were strewn all the way down the street. The little boy managed to keep his seat in the rig until it reached the corner of Macnab and Stuart-streets. As the wagon passed over the street railway tracks the jolt threw the boy out and fell on the wheel and was thrown to the ground, landing on his head.

Thomas Canary was driving up Stuart-street at the time and saw the boy fall. He jumped off his rig and picked the little fellow up. He was unconscious and blood was flowing from two nasty gashes in his head. He was carried into the office of the weigh scales and Dr. Wardell was summoned. He dressed the wounds and then ordered the removal of the injured lad to the hospita!

Creegan of the 16th and John McMillan of the 45th. A pulpit was made of the bass drums of the bands, covered with a large Union Jack. The officers of each battalion stood in line before their commands. The bands were massed and played accompani-ments to the hymns sung. Rev. C. Gower Poole rend the service, key A. H. Creegan read the lessons.

The sermon.

The sermon was a practical one, delivered by Rev. John McMillan, pastor of the Presbyterian Church in Lindsay. He is a man broad-shouldered and tall, presenting a conspicuous figure on the ground. His voice was strong enough to be heard by every soldier on parade. He declared this camp meant preparation for war, which was justifiable as a last resort for the gaining of peace. He found instruction for the soldiers in the verse, "Diligent in business, fervent in spirit, serving the Lord." A soldier should be a good and patriotic citizen, not capable of being bought. He should possess the pride of an aroused self-respecting manhood.

He fell to the pavement alighting on his side. The ambulance was called and Wilson removed to the hospital. The doctors hold out hope of his recovery.

Every night an entertainment is given by the soldiers of this battalion. They have not tossed the caber as yet, but it is on the books for an early date. Last night the four pipers of the band played Highland jigs and reels, and Pipe Sergt. Major Fraser or Montreal, the best of that ilk, danced the sword dance and the Highland fling. A Gaelic chorus, accompanied by old-time Gaelic gestures, was a splendid feature of last night's performance.
