GEORGE MELFORD'S PARAMOUNT PRODUCTION, "BEHOLD MY WIFE," AT THE GRAND.
Something unusual in the way of play productions is promised in George Melford's "Behold My Wife," which will be shown at the Grand all week. The picture was adapted by Sir Gilbert Parker's popular novel, "The Translation of a Savage," and is declared to combine a deeply appealing story with lavish and artistic settings.

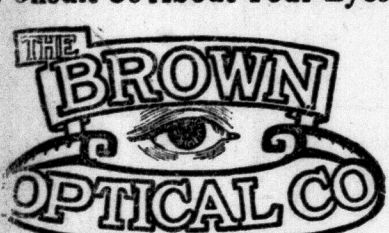

An aristocratic young Englishman, temporarily located in Canada, and an Irish girl, whom, in a moment of weakness, because his parents have caused him to be sent to the United States, he has reckoned without the girl's character and the big-heartedness of his elder brother. For in a few minutes the blossoming of a real romance events bring about a reconciliation between the ill-matched pair. Label: Julianne Scott, Milton Sills, Elliott Dexter are in the cast, and the picture is a Paramount.

"BABY MINE," A BIG LAUGHING HIT OF THE SEASON AT THE MAJESTIC.

Capacity audiences at the Majestic all this week have been rocked with laughter viewing that rollicking comedy farce, "Baby Mine," which has proved to be one of the best bits of amusement that the Majestic Players have had the pleasure of offering patrons since the opening of stock in the favorite theatre. The comedy comes fast and furious and provides the company with ample scope for some excellent acting, and Miss Gwendoline Pates, as the charming young wife seeking an adopted child with little or no success, provides a most finished interpretation of an excellent role. The Majestic is fast winning the patronage of London playgoers is evidenced in the capacity houses that have greeted them every performance this week. The Wednesday matinee proved to be the largest since the opening, and are proving the popular performance of the week with the feminine folk. The S. R. O. sign has been hung up every evening, and many have been turned away owing to lack of seating accommodation, and the management earnestly requests patrons to secure their seats in advance by telephoning the box office 1706. Seats can be secured one week in advance.

AT LEWIS.
How two women, one a leader of society and a mechanic's wife, deal with the most critical situations of their lives is thrillingly depicted in "Yes or No." Theatre, in which Norma Talmadge plays a double role with astonishing ability. How she can portray the part of Minnie Berry, the overworked little wife in a Third Avenue tenement, and Margaret Vane, the charming society woman of Fifth Avenue, and be equally appealing in both roles is something beyond comprehension until you remember that it is Norma Talmadge who is doing this superb acting.

As the light-headed, selfish Margaret Vane she answers "Yes" only too readily when her temper, Paul Herreck, a society woman, asks her to desert her husband and marry him, bringing ruin to all of them. As Minnie Berry she shows how faith and love finally brought happiness even when it seemed that she was being neglected and forgotten. The double role gives plenty of opportunity to display every phase of her varied personality and for her to appear in a series of entrancing costumes ranging all the way from the gingham gown of the simple housewife to a gorgeous ballroom dress. The supporting cast is an able one and includes the charming and petite Natalie Talmadge. The vaudeville is exceptionally good. While it covers a wide range of entertainment it is all bright and clean. More and the Reckless Duo present an unusual combination of singing, dancing and daring aerial balancing stunts. The various features are cleverly combined into a snappy act. Burton and Sparling come to bat with a new line of humor. It is of the rapid fire kind and fits in excellently with the singing numbers that go with it. Arthur Pickers and company present a clever little ten-minute comedy in which two perfectly good weddings get into an awful tangle and are then untangled once more by some clever twists.

The other features of the program add variety to the performance. There is a Sunshine comedy depicting the trials and tribulations of a dog-catcher in a manner that would make an Indian laugh. The news events too are well worth seeing.
