METHODISM URGES MEN

Proposed Changes in Greenwood Circuit, Where Young Men's Club is Organized.

GREENWOOD, Jan. 21.-(Special).-The moral reform movement of the Methodist Church is extending its work among the young men of the country, and thru them the leaders hope to put a higher idea Young men are urged to purify political life by attending the party caucases and insisting upon the best men and questions being entertained by the

The formation of clubs has extend-

The formation of clubs has extended to this district and the Greenwood Circuit have opened up the old Salem Church for its meeting. Last Sunday the Rev. D. F. McGee of Toronto, associate secretary, with Dr. Chown, addressed crowded houses. His themes were extremely practical and he made deep impressions upon the people regarding their responsibilities in the social world. A choir of young men led in the music.

Salem Church was built away back in the good old Methodist days when such men as Yorkshire Alex. Brown, Richard Squires, Wm. Gee, Judson Gibson, James Hartop and other stalwarts were moving figures in the church life of the vicinity. It is situated midway between the Methodist Churches of Kinsale and Greenwood, which are only a mile on either side of it. This proximity of sanctuaries was too much for even the ubiquitous followers of John Wesley and so Salem was closed.

Formerly Greenwood Circuit was composed of the churches at Brougham, Greenwood, Kinsale, Mount Zion, Audley and Glen Major. Two ministers, a married and a single man, were stationed over these, and the scheme worked out to the best interests of the people. Church life and social work were well abreast of the times and the annual harvest homes that were witnessed in the old drill shed at Greenwood evidenced the unity and prosperity of the people.

Latterly the scheme was changed.

which will be seen at the Royal Alexandra next week, has the distinction of having the last gowns designed by the famous New York society modiste, Mrs. Osborne. They embody all the newest shades, the soft cerise d'Algerie;

the greys and the mauves that have made fashion. The sash with the points reaching almost to the ground, Miss Elliston's first act gown, was the first appearance in public of what now is accepted as the latest development in the Diandley, which was added to Pickering, and Glen Major, which went without a service. This left four churches, and the work was relegated to one man.

Parkdale, who has been visiting Miss Louise Cadam in Bradford, Pa., for the past month, is expected home next week.

The annual at home given by the commodore and officers of the Toronto Canoe Club takes place at McConkey's this evening.

A very enjoyable time was spent last Saturday evening at "Surrey Villa," when Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Darby entertained a number of friends in honor of the anniversary of the birth of Mr. Darby. Tables were arranged for "five hundred," after which supper was served in the spacious dining room, which was profusely decorated with red and white roses, palms and ferns.

provision ought to be made for the preaching of the gospel and advanced work along moral lines. A religion that does not demand more sacrifice than is given in dollars and time, will not be regarded seriously by any people. Realizing this, suggestions have recently been made to close Kinsale and Greenwood Churches and make Salem the central one for both. This would accommodate both places, and build up a strong trio of churches for the pastor. The present edifices could still be used for their respective Sunday schools. The prominence of this movement has grown by reason of the work of the young men's club, which meets in Salem. These had a most successful banquet in Kinsale Hall last Monday night. Much of the enthusiasm for the work is being centred around Rev. Mr. Briant and Mr. Higgs are enchanted with Canada and regret they have to sail from New York next Wednesday.

As score of other wonderful stars of the life the present Marchesi has been in a classical musical atmosphere. In her library she has a wonderfully interesting album whose pages are written and drawn by many of the greatest musicians and most famous artists of the century. On Joachim's page he had written with his own hand in German, "A word to thank you for the conada and regret they have to sail from New York next Wednesday.

A feature of the evil times in church attendance which has befallen the cir-cuit was evidenced last Sunday afternoon, when at one of the appointments the adult attendance was only six, while the collection offering for the service of the Lord totaled the magnificent sum of fifteen cents, and this in a vicinity once noted for its old time enthusiasm. It is only another evidence of the decay of methods and men, and the constant need of keeping abreast the times in church life. Cards of invitation have been issued by the president and officers of the Toronto Humane Society to the annual meeting to be held in St. George's Hall on Thursday, Jan. 28, at 8 p.m.
