LIVING IN THE YUKON

Cost of Living High, But Wages Increase Proportionately

The cost of living in the Yukon is naturally high. Eggs cost about 75c a dozen, butter 80c, a pound of good beefsteak 50c, pork 40c, and other things in proportion. The freight rates into the Yukon are very high, varying from $20 to $30 a ton from the coast cities, so that heavy articles are often many times dearer than they are outside.

A woman paid fifty cents for a bath, brick, good board and lodgings may be had for about $70 a month, and a first-class dinner in a hotel may be had for $1 or even less. Workmen often "bach" in little cabins, about two or three together, and live on $20 a month.

But wages are also high. Seven dollars a day is paid for unskilled and $10 a day for skilled labor. Female teachers in the school draw $170 a month for twelve months, and male teachers from $200 a month. Ordinary clerks get $150 a month, and first-class stenographers $200.

There is no place in the world where a workingman with steady work is better off, but it must be remembered that there is little work in the winter, and the demand for work is strictly limited. Every spring quite a number of men, attracted by the tales of high wages in Dawson, make their way to Whitehorse, and then find down the Yukon in small boats. Last year the government was forced to assist 110 such men out of the country by giving them relief at a cost of some $60,000.

FREEDOM MORE A FACT IN ENGLAND THAN IN THE STATES

Portland Newspaper Writer Makes Comparisons—His Recollection of the Late King's Visit in 1860

(Charles E. Allen in Portland Argus)
Harvard's professor of history says that a sovereign of England is shut in by a government more directly subject to popular opinion than that of the United States. And while this is no doubt true, is not a British monarch at the same time a freer man (or woman) than our chief executive? For in addition to other restraints, both the American people and their president are very much bound by party ties. The executive can hardly be expected to pursue a policy that will injure a political organization to which he owes his position; it must be with a feeling of extreme reluctance. Cleveland denounced the Wilson tariff bill, but did not veto it. Taft has tried hard to think that the Payne-Aldrich measure is not so bad as it might be. The Sovereign of England may not be so much so, but he is not so much so as we are now whining about in "free America."

An Indian chief was asked if his people were free, and his response—"Why not, since I myself am free, although their king"—was apt, as a leader of the only democratic people who have ever lived on this continent. Of course Fourth of July orators prate of a free government "by the people," and the people have come to think that such talk makes them free "sovereigns," and so they throw up their caps and shout themselves hoarse over George Washington who with others framed a nondescript sort of government that is neither fish, flesh, nor fowl, and is practically as far from the people as it will come.

Has ours ever been a free government? In 1776 speech was freer in England than it was in this. Men like Thomas Paine could in parliament and out of parliament declare that the American colonies should be independent, and not be tried for treason, while a poor clergyman in the wilderness of Maine was mobbed (as were many others) for praying for his king. And Paine could not be tried for treason, while a poor clergyman in the wilderness of Maine was mobbed (as were many others) for praying for his king. And Paine could not be tried for treason, while a poor clergyman in the wilderness of Maine was mobbed (as were many others) for praying for his king.

Very many similar comparisons might be made. For instance, the last real working man in our congress was treated shabbily, while the English house of commons had several working men among its members. Some have been in the cabinet, imagine.

WOMAN GAME WARDEN

She Doesn't Hesitate to Use the Gun in Making Arrests

Mrs. B. R. Buffham, of Roswell, was formerly a school teacher at Beatrice, Neb. Her health failed and she came to New Mexico to start a chicken ranch. Mrs. Buffham is a deputy game warden, and probably the only woman deputy game warden in the country. Soon after she located in New Mexico she was covered that the wild birds needed a protector. She saw them ruthlessly slaughtered, sometimes by the hands of men, and she was determined to protect them. She loved birds and this needless butchery worked on her nerves, and she complained to the authorities. At first they paid no attention to her. She complained again, and she kept complaining in such vigorous terms and with such persistence that the authorities were forced to sit up and take notice. Her interest in birds resulted finally in her appointment as a deputy with full authority to make arrests. Her appointment was regarded as a joke by the local men of the territory, and they kept on killing the beautiful birds.

One day she caught two pothunters in the act of shooting bobwhite quail out of season. Quick as a flash she went to the aid of the men were ordered to throw down their guns. They were surprised. They were themselves had been hunting men quick on the trigger and men who would not hesitate to shoot. They hesitated.

On ominous click of the hammer of the rifle was raised, and an angry flash from the fair captain's eyes made them start. Down went the guns, and the men were faced about and taken to Roswell. It was her first arrest, but not her last. The game butchers and the pothunters and the bad men have learned that Mrs. Buffham means business. She is a dead shot herself, a big game hunter, absolutely fearless, and she has the mountain lions which sometimes cross her path and stop her bullets.—Roswell Correspondence Denver Post.

THE COMET

Oh, say, The comet is coming this way With a small, Like-well, Like a motor car, But it won't jar. Us a little bit And we'll be just as fit. After our gassy bath As if weren't in the path Of a comet, But say, We've got every day Things all around us Harder than forty comets. See? And by gee! It's them to be afraid of It's them to be quick— The stuff that they are made of Will make a comet sick. Don't let it get your mind Distracted from the evils Of much more serious kind. That every day are with us And yet we seem to think A comet has more power To put us on the blink. By gum! To put us on the comet. Will put us on the bum— Mind that now! Wow!

An Interesting Calculation

HERE is an interesting calculation for young housewives or old ones for that matter. A pound of the best bread in the world made from ROYAL HOUSEHOLD FLOUR costs less than four cents. A pound of the best beef steak costs 25 to 30 cents. Yet a pound of bread made from ROYAL HOUSEHOLD FLOUR contains more working energy than a pound and a half of beef steak. Or three pounds of pork, or two pounds of veal.

Whether figured by the pound or by actual units of health and strength, bread made from

is the most economical food in the world. Especially is bread made from ROYAL HOUSEHOLD FLOUR good for growing children. They can't eat too much of it. For their general healthy growth and development, it furnishes an almost complete food. As a matter of household economy, children ought to be given all the bread they can eat at all times.

Statistics also prove that ROYAL HOUSEHOLD FLOUR will sustain life longer than animal food. It is extremely rich in high quality gluten which comes from the best Red Fyfe Wheat—the finest in the world. This large percentage of high quality gluten is what makes ROYAL HOUSEHOLD FLOUR so much better than ordinary flour. Red Fyfe Wheat is known the world over for its richness in high quality gluten.

HOLMES SANG OF LAST COMET VISIT

Depicted Apprehension Felt by People and Suggested Cures for "Alarm"

One of the earliest collections of Oliver Wendell Holmes' poems gives a reminiscence of Halle's comet in 1835. In a few prefatory lines by the author to the publishers in this little volume the writer, referring to a number of his productions prior to 1835 therein, which, notwithstanding marks of inexperience, have been allowed to remain says: "I have no doubt that right in thinking there is no harm in allowing a few crudities to keep their place among the poems. Some of the danzas follow:—

THE COMET.
The comet! He is on his way, And singing as he flies; He depicts the apprehension that was felt on the approach of Halle's comet in 1835, and gives the best remedy for avoiding such alarms. Some of the danzas follow:—
