VALENTINE'S DAY

This is the feast of St. Valentine and many pleasant greetings appropriate to the event were exchanged amongst friends. The number of valentines sent through the mails was not so great as in other years, and in fact many dealers think the number sold was less also. There were not so many of the more costly valentines purchased this year, but there seemed to be a popular demand for the smaller fancy stock and also for the post-card valentine. The old-fashioned "romantic" was not so prominent, and in fact many believe the vogue for this is dying out.

HAD PLEASANT TIME

Members of the S. S. Club gathered last evening and spent a busy and profitable time at the residence of Mrs. W. B. Scardiff, in Peters street, furthering the work they planned for themselves at the first of the season. The affair took the form of a Valentine evening, and the hostess had the rooms nicely decorated for the event. After a few busy hours in sewing and other activities, a fine programme of dancing was enjoyed. A strolling fortune teller made her appearance during the evening and many of those present gave their palms for reading what the future held. The rule of the club is that mere man is not permitted at its meetings, but last evening an amendment to the constitution was temporarily made, and members of the sterner sex were present. Altogether it was a very delightful time, and it was some time after midnight, following refreshments, that the gathering dispersed.

EARLY DAYS IN THE HISTORY OF FAIRVILLE

Old Time Resident Recalls Them For The Times

HOW IT RECEIVED NAME

Times When Men Received 50 Cents and $1 For Day's Work in Mill—Voting in the Olden Days—The Growth to Present Activity

Sixty years of time brings many changes not only in human life but in surroundings, and this became very apparent during a conversation a Times man enjoyed last evening with one of the oldest residents of Fairville, who moved there from Carleton about 1858. Among the interesting matters discussed was how Fairville village received its name. It appears that the idea of having a school of their own had been under consideration for some time, as it was not altogether satisfactory for the children to go to Union Point as previously. It was necessary to have the place named before a government grant could be secured, the men talked over the matter, and it seemed to be generally agreed that Summersville would suit very well. Just here the old gentleman interviewed, turning to Robert Fair said "Mr. Fair you are about the oldest inhabitant of these parts, why not call the new village after you?" This suggestion was favorably received, and so Fairville it became.

In those very early days a child's schooling cost $1.00 a quarter and the older one paid $2.50 for the same period. There were only half a dozen houses in what is now Main street, along the Manawagonish Road to the old Yorkshire Tavern, and the population corresponded with the size of the town. Labor was very cheap, men working in the two saw mills at Union Point for wages ranging from fifty a day to $1 and they had to put in twelve hours at it. The only means of transportation to the city was by walking or driving, and three pence toll was charged each pedestrian crossing the bridge over the falls.

Originally all voters in Lancaster were obliged to exercise their franchise at Prince of Wales, where the only polling booth was located. Later on this was changed to Spruce Lake and finally to Fairville. Today some men want to be taken to the polls in carriages or automobiles from the shortest distances, but in those times men went to a great deal of inconvenience to deposit their ballots. Everyone used candles for illuminating purposes. Each household saved the fat and tallow, and ran it into their own moulds, until Spurr's oil mill at Millford was built and then the price was sixty cents a gallon. The oil was extracted from coal brought here from Albert.

The first Sunday school was held in the Methodist church, which was built in 1858, by Messrs. J. Stout and Bonar Irvine now busy stores. Afterwards an annex was built to the public school and used for this purpose.

Andre Chabing and Colonel Godard were the first steam mill owners in Fairville. Today some men want to be taken to the polls in carriages or automobiles from the shortest distances, but in those times men went to a great deal of inconvenience to deposit their ballots. Everyone used candles for illuminating purposes. Each household saved the fat and tallow, and ran it into their own moulds, until Spurr's oil mill at Millford was built and then the price was sixty cents a gallon. The oil was extracted from coal brought here from Albert.

And all this is one man's experience. What will have happened when another half century rolls by? It is for the rising generation to answer. A dance was held last night in Orange Hall, Lorneville, in honor of George McAllister, who is leaving on February 19 for Vancouver.
