Notes and Suggestions of Practical Utility FOR THE FARM, FIELD, GARDEN AND DAIRY.

Cleanliness of Interest for Our Country Readers.

Game fowls grow firm meat. Return all waste to the soil. Sheep feeding seldom pays. Don't overstock your pasture. Green-manuring is open to all. Early pullets bring good prices. It is better to be safe than sorry. Feed grain regularly or not at all. Cross-breeding may be up or down. Sheep raising indicates long clothing. A her with a hood needs good food. Early heaves are better than late corn. Eggs not regularly gathered get stale. A good horse soon recommends itself. Twelve feet are a good width for a gate. A thrifty pig rapidly increases in value. Sheep raising indicates long clothing. If you have a good milk cow, keep her. The soil needs accumulation from the air. Sheep are good feeders and good workers. A poor breeder may have good breeding. Do at once the thing that needs to be done. Don't feed lambs too heavy grain rations. Timothy is not a profitable food for the dairy. Consider the conditions as well as the sheep. Wheat never comes amiss as a food for lambs. See that no part of the farm runs to waste. The habit of promptness is a fortune in itself. Clean work at first means a clean field at last. Some old hens are better than young ones. Just in time is the medium and safe course. It does not pay to sell your best animals. Thoroughbred private dairymen are in demand. Give the cows a little dry rest while in pasture. Worry is as bad for domestic animals as for men. The polled breeds of cattle are growing in favor. Cleanliness is the best remedy for skin diseases. Eggs pastured to poultry; better mow the pasture. Eggs are concentrated food in small quantities. Sides to the breast that you have done well with. Sheep never ripens milk for feeding to the pig. Milk is the foundation food for meat and the dairy. Full feed the year round is the greatest mistake. In some fields sheep are better than hogs. Sheep in good condition are rarely attacked by lice. Too much and too heavy harness is a disadvantage. An uneasy animal does not grow well nor lay on fat. Remember, whitewash is cleansing and sweetening. Feed only clean and wholesome food to any animal. The microbes are left out of the milk of the unsanitary farmer. Animals as well as men have their individual tastes. Work performed at the right time is most valuable. Sell all unprofitable animals while yet running in game. It requires but little money to start in the pig business. Charcoal is pronounced an aid to digestion. Wherever the soil is unshaded nitrogen will accumulate. Maintaining the fertility of the soil is of prime importance. Let the foot be better; then ringing to keep boys from cutting. Allow no lime, ashes, plaster or other refuse to go to waste. Mechanical imitation is simply on the plane of the monkey. Fat is easily added after the frame and muscles are developed. Gloves with the ends of the fingers cut off are a good protection in picking blackberries, etc. A little turpentine in the slop is said to destroy worms in pigs; too much will destroy the pigs. If the producing classes were as united as the money classes they would be the rulers of the world. To make hard leather limber and soft even it is well limbered with moisture before applying oil. Whether feeding grain to cows in pasture will pay depends much on the condition of the pasture. A machine that you are acquainted with is better than a better one with which you are unfamiliar.

ANNOTATIONS, HAPPENINGS AND GENERAL COMMENTS

Clipped and Condensed for the Readers of THE GLOBE.

Australia is estimated to contain over one million Irish people. Nearly 20,000 lb. of bread are daily eaten in the Sultan of Turkey's household.

Every transatlantic trip of the larger of the ocean liners costs about $25,000 to $4,000.

London's six principal railway lines carry annually over 200,000,000 people and the tramways about 150,000,000.

The Director of Theatres at St. Petersburg has issued a decree strictly forbidding any hissing of artists during a performance.

The Daisy gets its name from "day's eyes," because it unfolds its simple beauties at the "peep of day," and earlier than any other of Flora's robes.

The average rate of a sailing vessel in making a passage may be estimated at 100 nautical miles per day, and that of a steam vessel at 200 nautical miles per day.

A Presbyterian church in Lancaster, Pa., gives a gold medal to each person who does not miss a service during the year. Last year the sexton received the medal.

An actress was recently declared bankrupt in Vienna. She returned her liabilities to the amount of 100,000 francs, which she made her dues for a foreign tour. Her only assets consisted of those same dresses and some jewellery.

A city lawyer has observed with much truth that every man is, in a sense, three different men. In the first place he is the man he thinks himself to be; in the second, he is the man other persons think him to be; and, finally, he is the man that he really is.

THE DAILY. According to an article in The Orono Journal, by Mr. McMillen, a cold storage room, to be the most effective, must be kept below the freezing point. He says: "Various experiments have been tried and constant improvement has been made in the method and the ability to produce a very low temperature at a minimum cost we are now able to freeze butter and hold it at a very low temperature, at a cost as low or lower than for fresh butter for ordinary cold storage. After experiments covering a range of the past five years it has been thoroughly demonstrated that this is the only proper way to hold butter. Butter made last June, frozen solid and held until May, came out in elegant condition. We a high city and all of very fine flavor. Ordinary goods hold their own and deteriorate very little. Freezing has come to stay, and we think every shipper will wish to get the advantage. Repeated experiments have shown that butter frozen will stand up longer after being taken out of the freezer than that held in the ordinary cold storage. A certain amount of fermentation takes place in the cold storage butter that is prevented by the freezing process, and when the butter is taken from the freezer it has better keeping qualities than butter held in ordinary cold storage." But don't expose the butter to a warm atmosphere until you are ready to use it, as it will rapidly deteriorate.

Prof. Roberts thinks that dairying should be conducted through the entire year; that in the long run it is better to raise cows than to purchase them; that inheritance has so much to do with capacity that every dairy cow should have an improved and well bred sire; that feed has more to do with quality and quantity combined than any other one factor, when given fair conditions; that fully double the amount of feed for the dairy can be raised under the conditions of fertility from an acre of corn, of rye or alfalfa, as from an acre of timothy, orchard grass or blue grass; that well nourished plants give a more valuable product, ponded for pond, than partially starved or immature ones; and finally that care and judgment in feeding and milking and attention to the comforts of the animal, all play such an important part in the final result, that combined that may be accompanied the final great factor.

The following advertisement of a cow for sale appeared in the Mirror and Farmer: "Owing to ill health, I will sell at my residence in township 19, range 12 west, according to government survey, one plump, raspberry colored cow, aged eight years. She is a good milkster and not afraid of the cars or anything else. She is of undoubted courage and gives milk frequently. To a man who does not fear death in any form she would be a great boon. She is very much attached to her home at present, by means of a stay chain, but she will be sold to any one who will agree to use her right. She is one-fourth Shorthorn and three-fourths Hays. I will also throw in a double-barrel shot-gun which goes with her. In May she generally goes away somewhere for a week or two, and returns with a tall red calf, with long wobbly legs. Her name is Rose, and I prefer to sell her to a non-resident."

CURIOSITY CALLED.

Some of the Curious and Unusual Ways of Fishing for the Finny Tribe.

Sometimes in quite an uncommon and unexpected way in the finny tribe fall victims to their captors. The writer has often seen mackerel taken with almost any bright object—even silver coins answering the purpose of a lure.

When a yacht was on a fishing cruise, its owner was pulling in a gurnet which he had hooked on a spigot, when suddenly a shark appeared and tried to swallow the gurnet, but the smaller fish fought hard to escape the jaws of the huge creature, now driving under the boat, and now swimming on top of the water. All the while the shark was making great rushes at it, and once or twice got it in his mouth. One of the men got the gaff, and when the opportunity offered, by a dexterous stroke sent the gaff into the shark, which was hauled on board, where its frantic efforts to escape threw all into confusion. A few well-applied blows with a marlin-spike soon placed this curiously captured creature out of harm's way.

Another unexpected capture was made in this way. A gentleman was fishing for jack from a boat, which was being towed by a fisherman, when he suddenly hooked a three-and-a-half pound fish, which was immediately killed by a thirteen-pounder, and so determined was the hold stroke of the large pike on the fish, that the angler succeeded in landing the brook, although the larger fish had no hook in him.

The next sporting incident was of a somewhat similar nature. Whilst fishing in an English river a piscator hooked a quarter-sized dace in a pool, which whilst being landed, was seized by a pike of about ten pounds weight. The pike promptly made down stream, where a friend of sportsman number one was bottom fishing for barbel, and ran across his line, knocking the first line fast to it; consequently, every run the fish made, both fishermen had to play him, the two reels going off at once, and both taking slack at the same time.

The next of things went on for twenty minutes, the fish occasionally being seen swimming about with the dace crosswise in his mouth. Both lines were suddenly relieved of the strain, and bringing them to the bank they were found to be minus the pike, but the dace was still on the cast—quite dead and much mutilated.

Another angler once caught a fish in a very peculiar way. On casting the fly he was suddenly struck by a fish, which struck and as he thought, hooked it. For its size it gave an unusually strong and strange pull, and when landed it appeared that the fish was not hooked at all, but that the gut had formed a loop with the hook, which had thus snared the fish by the middle of the body.

A gentleman fishing a river one day during a heavy gale had to cross it by one of the swing bridges. While doing so he took a fish—a rock one—down into the river, and it was only a marvel that the owner did not follow it. He got safely across, however, and saw his hat floating down stream.

As luck would have it, several of his best flies were round the hat. He gazed after it, hoping it might float to the side, but to his astonishment he saw it instantly disappear under the water. What could have done it? It was no looking after it now, so the gentleman returned home hunched. The mystery of its sudden disappearance was explained a few days afterwards, when it was found stranded considerably further down the river with a fine set of ten pounds weight attached to one of the flies.

An extraordinary catch, it will be acknowledged, was made in the following instance. A gentleman was rowing a lady in a boat on a park lake. The fair passenger held a bouquet, a string attached to which was dragging in the water. Whether the bright color of the flowers was the cause, or a fly alighted on the string, is not known, but a magnificent jack sprang at the baiting. The rower, with admirable presence of mind, seized the bouquet and jerked the fish into the boat.

An extraordinary mode of taking fish is practiced by Indians on the Orinoco, who drive horses into the water, swimming with electric oars, and capture the fish when they are exhausted by repeated discharges of their batteries on the poor frightened animals.

But the strangest example of a fish curiously caught has yet to follow, for the accuracy of which, however, we do not vouch. A veteran angler was crossing some stepping stones in the bed of a river, when he fell into the shallow water and got thoroughly drenched. When he scrambled up, to his amazement he found a three-pound trout flapping in the pocket of his overcoat—the only fish he caught that day.

No man ever smoked "Myrtle Navy" tobacco for a fortnight and then took to any level in preference to it. It bears its own testimony of its quality, and it is testimony which is always convincing. The smoker who uses it is never annoyed by getting it sometimes of good quality and sometimes of bad. The arrangements of the manufacturer for keeping its quality equal are very elaborate and complete, and are the result of many years of experience and close observation.

CRIPPLE WITH RHEUMATISM. Russell McKay, Murray Harbor, Acad. P. E. I., writes: "I was crippled with rheumatism and could get no relief until I used your 'Pink Pills.' I am now well." Of 14 dealers by mail at 50c. a box or 4 boxes for $2.00. Dr. Williams Med. Co., Brockville, Ont., or Schenectady, N. Y. Beware of imitations.

A Feeling of Necessity. "Dogs may have their day, if they want it; but the night is plenty good enough for me," said Tommy Tinklesome, feline his way carefully along the backyard fence.
