The Score Act.—The Telegraph publishes the following.—Rev. Stephen T. Teed, of Chatham, says:—

Chatham, Rob. 4.—The Scott Act is a grand success here; our lone peden, published this p. m., says: "The provisions of the Act are strictly carried out, and one never, or very seldom, sees an intericated individual, and the police magnistrate's office is a sinecure. I worked hard, in conjunction with others, to secure its adoption in this county, and feel amply rewarded. The principle is unmistake-ably good.

The most noticeable feature of the play was the narrow victories of the successful that in the first competition this Harris was a very young and promising player, and one of the best men of the Club in the ring against him and would really have won, but for a "fluke" by his oppon-one. The latter who was finally successtal, acknowledges the corn and it is expoct.
I that Harris will yet have his revenge. In the first set of games the rinks opposed and results were as follows:-

The number of ladies who appeared in costume was not so large as it ought to have been, a fact due to the tain ones of Newcastle not being adequately represented. Chatham and Derby ladies to halleve he desired to have them encour-

A Highland Laddie from Derby, who looked and skated well, was the first to take the ice and he was soon followed by the "darkey gents" who were also well made up and quite at home in the "poetry of motion." The Census Taker, a "taking" old man—really an improvement on the genuine article—came next and, then, the horrible "good night" efficy appeared like a nightmare Lady Macbeth.—

Its tears are shed over the fact that the Advance believes the contrary and other places were well represented by gentlemen and we have no doubt that when another Carnival is got up in the Shiretown the masqueraders of both sexes will turn out in such strength as to throw even the successful affair of Tuesday night into the shade.

A Highland Laddie from Derby, who looked and shated well, was the tirst to the that the Advance believes the contrary and has expressed such belief. If each paper is sincere in its belief there is no cause for tears on either side. The World has, doubtless, learned what local public sentiment is respecting both and hence its tearful protest against our holding it committed to the responsitive willow and contained a sufficient height to effectually prevent the account of the Star by advertisement in its own columns. It cannot now, by withdrawing the advertisement and making a tearful denial, cancel the responsibility it assumed. The World's Newcastle party rival ought to bring an action for damages.

The Advance appears to have lacerated the feelings of the World in three distinct ways—once through Hon. It is a matter of remark that he has done that kind of thing very diten—forgetting home friends for the purpose of conciliating opponents; but, then, some of our mechanics are not much conciliated by being informed by Mr. Mitchell that he isn't sure whether he wants the waggons and harness after all, and that "a chance for Chatham" was fast,"

Now, persons of mature and logical mind will perceive that in its tearful excitement the World has not disproved the statements of the Portland papers. The long defence of the Church Street tank and though it may repent of having published such defence and water its repent ance with genuine tears, its responsibility remains the same. Hereafter it will be more discreet, no doubt, for the process of cutting its eye-teeth will be much accelerated by the discoveries it will make after acting on the advice and suggestions of its numerous interested friends, its infantile tears serving, meantime, to wash the scales from its unsophisticated eyes.

He would copy some facts about the Brass Band and try to pass them off as entirely fresh, were it not for the fact that the Advance originally published them three or four weeks ago.

People read the paper with interest, especially as they say the Syndicate sends it to them and it costs them nothing.
