In addition to this we must not forget to mention the gifts made to the church—the handsome communion cloth and hangings, and also the work so freely given in the chancel by Mr. Harrison, of Harrison Bros.

CONCLUSION.—Such is our review, and with such a review our outlook cannot but be hopeful. Hitherto hath the Lord helped us, and He who hath blessed, will bless.

Glad am I to that in the largest church in the Diocese there is to found with the grand old service of the Church of England in its simple beauty unadorned, and the grand old gospel of the Word of God, unmutated and undefiled, such prosperity, and manifest blessing from on high.

So may it be from year to year, and generation to generation until He comes. But, from our hearts let us say lest we become vain, not unto us, oh not unto us, but unto Thy name give all the glory.

DYSON HAGUE, Rector.
