AAS conference defeats motion backing student representation sociation of Students, at a convention here Oct. 7 to 9, defeated a resolution calling for student representation and participation in the governing of Alberta's postsecondary institutions.

Delegates from both the U of A and the University of Calgary objected to the wording of the resolution.

But none of the delegates suggested the resolution be rewritten. Taken from September's CUS

Congress held at the University of Western Ontario, it read in part that:

QU student charges parking by-law is illegal

KINGSTON (CUP)—Have you ever tried to dodge a parking ticket?

A Queen's student has challenged the Kingston parking bylaws.

in court last week that the bylaw which authorizes parking tickets for parking meter violations is illegal.

Magistrate P. E. D. Baker has ordered Hogle and the city solicitor to submit written legal arguments.

Hogle contends the Kingston bylaw is invalid because it lists three offenses under one charge. The Criminal Code of Canada, he says, requires that each charge by equivalent to one offense.

The bylaw says an offense is committed when a motorist "parks, causes to be parked, or permits to be parked", a vehicle at a meter showing violation.

"I don't want just to raise hell for the city", Hogle claims.

He says he's interested in the point of law.

A Queen's law student, Mathew Hudson, contested the same charge before the same magistrate last Hudson said the wording of the Kingston parking meters was illegal. He won the case.

The lectures, sponsored by the Wauneita Society, are a follow-up to Dr. Vant's annual sex lectures for freshmen, held Oct. 2 and 3

WINNIPEG (CUP)-Four members of the University of Manitoba students' council have resigned over charges that the university is discriminating against non-white students.

The four executive council members, external vice-president Janis internal vice-president Pat Gallagher, treasurer Peter Simmie, and secretary Gordon Mackie, resigned after their policy on off-campus housing was defeated by council.

In mid-September students' union president Chris Westdal said the university carries two lists for students seeking off-campus hous-

The contentious part of their motion said "landlords wanting to be listed with the housing service would be asked if they would refuse anyone on the ground of race, religion or national origin." Those answering 'yes' would be left off the list.

after the four resignations had been submitted, the council reversed its earlier stand and accepted the original motion.

(5) the government representing society has ultimate responsibility to act in society's interest by means of laws and financial arrangements with the academic society.

Al Anderson, students' president, opposed the motion "as it reads now.

"I think it's a little strong," he said.

Bob Eustace, U of C students' union president, also opposed the motion, objecting to words such as 'confrontation" and "sectors of the

NO RIGHT

Dennis Crowe, students' union president of Red Deer Junior College, felt the AAS does not have the right to dictate to the students.

"I certainly don't agree with student power," said Anderson. "Stu-dent representation is one thing, but student power.

"I would question the competence of students (to govern)," he said.

Dave King, students' union vice-president, argued that "competence in anything is the result of a tradition of involvement.

"If we reject to (the resolution) by saying we have no right to do it, what possible right have we got to pass a resolution such as (the

Indian youth votes down Red Power program

PORT ARUTHUR (CUP) - The week_voted against a program of Red Power.

The program was not on the when the conference convened, but was added Saturday.

The young Indians voted to set up a Canadian Indian Institute; a centre for higher education for Canadian Indians modeled on Toronto's Rochdale College.

Rochdale combines co-operative living with a "free" school; students live on campus co-operatively and plan their course of studies according to what they want to study and how they wish to study
