

We write to warn our academic institutions of the possible trouble they may bring upon their protégés in the bestowment of musical honors.

PRAYER ON LEAVING THE PRESIDENTIAL MANSION.—We are indebted to a Maryland correspondent for the following pleasing excerpt:—

WE DON'T FIT THEM.—Many of our citizens were duped into enclosing seventy-five cents, as per advertisement recently published, for a set of solid silver tea spoons, to be sent by return mail on receipt of price.

Receipts for "WESLEYAN," for week ending June 6th, 1877.

At his residence in this Town, on Wednesday morning, 28th May, after a short but severe illness, J. Benson Steed, Esq., leaving a widow, five children, a mother, and very many friends to mourn their irreparable loss.—Seldom indeed is an entire community so deeply moved as has been the case with us on this sad occasion.—For Mr. Steed was widely known and universally respected. His was manhood of a type not often to be met with—conscientious, trustworthy, honorable, generous; firm in his friendship, and ever faithful in the discharge of the manifold and onerous duties which his vocation imposed on him—his death is felt by all classes as a public calamity; we could ill spare him, and such a loss, in a small community especially, leaves a wide blank. We were much struck in listening to the address of his minister, at the funeral, by the remark that to make sacrifices for the good of others was his greatest delight. What a noble and Christ-like spirit these words portray—may his example, both in life and death, shed an influence for good on all who came within its reach.

The general appreciation of his worth received a touching confirmation in the very large assemblage of persons who followed his remains to their last resting place—it included the representatives of all classes amongst us, high and low, rich and poor alike and it must ever prove a solacing reflection to his bereaved family and friends.—Bermuda.
