Stock sales have been better than ever this year from Orchard Farm, MacGregor, Man., according to a letter received from J. Bousfield. The sales have included two carloads of young bulls, small lots of Shorthorn and grade females shipped to different points and several individual animals. Just at present this breeder has on hand seventy-five head of breeding Shorthorn stock, many of which are prize winners, and all are held at very reasonable prices. In Yorkshire pigs, too, a splendid lot is for immediate sale. Anyone requiring breeding stock would do well to get into touch with Mr. Bousfield.

PLEASANT VALLEY DUROCS

The Duroc-Jersey breed of hogs has, during the past few years, come more and more into prominence in the Western provinces. Much of their popularity in this country at the present day can be traced to the determination and far-sightedness of a few enthusiastic breeders who have constantly done all in their power to bring the breed onto a similar footing with the other breeds of swine—a position which the Duroc-Jersey breed justly deserves. Among the pioneer breeders of Durocs the name of John Maurer stands out pre-eminently as the first man in the West to establish the breed at his Pleasant Valley stock farm, Clive, Alberta. Since that time the herd has been consistently kept before the public eye, both in the show ring and by means of advertising. Converts to the breed have been made largely by the uniform quality of the animals which have been shipped to purchasers, and today, from this year's show ring record, it is evident that this herd continues to hold the best blood obtainable. John Maurer has been especially successful with his young stuff at the fairs and when it is considered that all this prize-winning stock has been bred at home directly according to the breeder's own ideal, it is only natural to suppose that the very best results will be obtained from any animals purchased from this herd.

GOLDEN WEST BALGREGGAN

In a review of the fair circuit just past one cannot fail to notice the almost phenomenal success of one of the old breeders, namely, P. M. Bredt, of Golden West Balgreggan stock farm, Calgary. The Bredt showing was confined to the two Alberta fairs of Calgary and Edmonton, but the awards obtained were numerous enough to have satisfied any ordinary breeder who had followed the whole fair circuit from Calgary, east to Winnipeg and back again thru Brandon, Regina, Saskatoon and Edmonton. Altogether this stock won ten championships, eight reserves, two gold medals, three silver medals, forty-five firsts and twenty-five seconds. A better indication of the quality of the stock could scarcely be wished for, much less attained. The fact is that the Bredt ideal is utility, first, last and all the time. It is recognized that in order for a horse to be serviceable, and service is the first consideration on the average farm, it must have the weight which makes the difference between easy and hard keeping and wearing qualities. With this idea in view, the Clydesdales at Golden West Balgreggan have, first of all, weight, combined with the very highest possible quality. The mares scale around eighteen hundred pounds and the colts from these mares are from some of the best stallions in Clydesdale history. Usefulness, too, stands out prominently in the Shorthorn ideal, which is to be found pasturing on the old Turner ranch. Females of all the well known families are to be found and both beef and milking Shorthorns are for disposal. There is no question about any of this stock, the young stuff shows that reproduction is true to type. Shropshire and Oxfordshire sheep figure prominently on the hill sides and just now a splendid bunch of ram lambs are ready for fall delivery. Any farmer who is just commencing to start a herd or flock would be certain of the very best foundation stock if obtained from and bred by Mr. Bredt.

We do not count a man's years till he has nothing else to count.—Emerson.
