The Probable Cause of Germany's Prohibition of American Cattle.

New York, Oct. 29.—The World has the following despatch from Washington.

The German Ambassador has informed the Secretary of State that Germany will prohibit the importation of beef and cattle from this country on the ground that cattle imported from this country have been found to be infected by Texas fever. While this is the ostensible ground, there is little doubt that Germany is seeking to retailate for the imposition by-the tariff law of a discriminating duty upon German beet sugar.

retaliate for the imposition by the tariff law of a discriminating duty upon German beet sugar.

During the consideration of the tariff bill the German Ambassador called attention to the fact that the discrimination would violate an existing treaty stipulation. In a treaty made many years ago with Prussia, a treaty still in force, this Government agreed that Prussian imports should not be discriminated against but should receive the treatment accorded to the most favored nation. Notwithstanding this fact, congress passed the tariff bill with the 1-10 cent discriminating tax included. Of course the state department will not talk upon the subject as it is the rule of the diplomats to cover themselves with the cloak of secrecy; but there is good reason to believe that the officials of this Government admit to themselves at last that the attitude of this country is indefensible. The law must be executed, however, and it seems that the state department can do nothing. The supposition that the action of Germany is meant as a retaliation finds support in the fact that Texas fever is non-communicable by diseased cattle and that the meat of cattle afflicted by the ailment is not considered harmful.

Secretary Morton sent to the Secretary of State this communication, in reply to a notice of the action of Germany:

"Referring to your communication in regard to the prohibition of American cattle and fresh beef by Germany, please represent to the American Ambassador that the Texas fever is not communicated by diseased cattle so that even if the reported discovery of this disease is correct that the Texas fever is not communicated by diseased cattle so that even if the reported discovery of this disease is correct there is no danger to German cattle; also that meat of the cattle affected by this disease has never been shown to be dangerous to the consumer. This Government inspected all meat exports and certifies that the cattle were free from disease when slaughtered. A vigorous protest should be entered against the proposed action."

The Absconding Sub-Collector of Customs on His Way to Regina.

MONTREAL, Oct. 29.—Captain Perry MONTREAL, Oct. 29.—Captain Perry Neale, the abscending sub-collector of customs, St. Mary's, N.W.T., is in Montreal, and will leave to-night for Regina in charge of Inspector O'Leary, of the Dominion police force, Ottawa, where his trial will take place in due course. The prisoner is accused of having embezzled some $8,000 of government money collected in the course of his duties. He fled on August 30th last, and, crossing the line, left New York on one of the Cunarders, but electricity is faster than steam, and long before he set foot in England the news of his flight had been flashed across and he had spent but one day in the metro and he had spent but one day in the metro-polis when he was apprehended, the arrest taking place on the 18th September. ral expectation. Lord Rosebery at Bradford Saturday night made a good rousing speech, which will be likely to satisfy every Liberal, except pernaps Henry Labouchers and two or three eccentric politicians who follow his lead.

"Lord Rosebery cannot see his way to abouish the Lords off-hand. That could only be done, he says, by a revolution,
but his announcement amounts to this,
that the House of Commons is to pass at the next session a couple of good raddeal measures any the disestablishment of the res, say the disestablis lien church in Wales and a land bill in reland. As soon as the Lords attempt to utilate these bills or actually reject them the Commons will pass a resolution de-claring themselves supreme in legislative matters and calling the attention of the despotic power.

"Then the Government will appeal to the country upon the direct understanding of the issue of the Commons against the fords. If the general election should shoulder the result by a strong Liberal majority the Government would be in a position to deal with the Lords in more drastic fashion, without much fear that they would have the courage to offer serious resistance to the expressed will of the ple.
