The Hindoo Mother.
The relation of a Hindoo husband to his wife is not like a contract sanctioned by the court of justice, but it is a permanent spiritual relation which binds two souls together. A wife is regarded, therefore, as a true helpmate in the spiritual progress of the soul life of her husband, while a faithful husband is considered to be the greatest blessing in the earthly and spiritual career of his wife. When she becomes a mother she represents divine motherhood and holds a unique position in the household.

A Hindoo mother is actually worshipped as a living goddess by her children. The children are taught to obey their parents implicitly and to serve them like earthly deities as long as they live. To support the parents in their old age, to look after their welfare and to fulfill their desires are the duties of children in every Hindoo household. But a mother is considered to be "greater than a thousand fathers."—Swami Abhedananda in Good Housekeeping.

WILLIS ON TRIAL

Mrs. Covell Says Now Man Who Searched For Her Didn't Look Like Accused.

St. Thomas, Nov. 2.—The trial of Alexander Willis for the murder of Eliza Lowry at Rodney, on April 19 last, was begun yesterday afternoon. Willis was arraigned and pleaded not guilty. He is quite self-possessed and looks well. He is defended by C. St. Clair Leitch of Dutton, while G. Lynch Staunton of Hamilton is Crown prosecutor. Mrs. Covell was placed on the witness stand, and gave substantially the same evidence as at the inquest and the preliminary trial. She, too, is self-possessed and deliberate. Her evidence occupied the court until closing time. The Crown is said to have no evidence. The case is expected to last all to-day, perhaps longer. There is a preponderance of St. Thomas men on the jury.

Says It Was Not Willis.
Mrs. Covell walked slowly into court, supporting herself with a crutch, and was sworn. She repeated her former evidence. In one important point, however, she varied her former story. After swearing in her principal evidence that the man who searched for her under the bed had a face like that of Willis, she cross-examined and stated positively that it was not Willis at all.

John Macpherson of Rodney told of being with Willis at the Binder Hotel, where they had four drinks between 8 and 10 o'clock the night preceding the murder. John Hughes, one of the proprietors of the hotel, testified that Willis procured a 35-cent flask of whiskey on the night of April 18. Willis wore a black felt hat, a soft one. Willis, Macpherson also testified to having seen Willis at the hotel, but that he was perfectly sober. Daniel D. Campbell and James M. Robertson gave unimportant evidence. William Flater, who owns a sawmill at Rodney, and who was the last person known to have seen Willis prior to the crime, swore that he overtook the prisoner about 10.30, and he then appeared to be slightly intoxicated. Willis broke the bottle, and they had a drink. They talked quite a while. They drank about half the liquor in the bottle. Thomas C. Campbell testified that Willis had stated at the inquest that he had reached his home about 12 o'clock, and did not again leave until next morning.

Saw a Man.

Dr. Wilbur Harvey of Rodney told of being out the Farnham road, and that about 11.30 that night he passed the Covell house and saw a man standing at the gate. The man was about 5 feet 10, and appeared to have come from the house. He wore an overcoat, but witness could not tell the color. He had on what looked like a hard hat with a dinge in it. The man was about the same build as Willis.

William Cole, who lives not far from the scene of the tragedy, said Willis lived a mile and a half from his place; had known Willis about 15 years. He saw Willis between 6 and 7 o'clock the morning after the tragedy. Saw Willis going east towards his own farm. He was positive it was Willis. He said he was the last taken when court adjourned.

Joseph P. Gandy, Grand Jury Toronto, Nov. 2.—The Grand Jury yesterday afternoon brought in a true bill against Josephine Carr, on the charge of manslaughter for causing the death of Baby Murray last May. When the indictment was read by the clerk she stood up and in a faint voice said "guilty." Mr. Robinette informed his lordship he would like to make a few remarks on her behalf before sentence was passed. Justice MacMahon replied he would not pass sentence at present.
