The Pope's Troubles.

The troubles of Pius IX. appear to be coming thick and fast upon him in his old age. A few months ago, and the Romagna, one of the largest and fairest divisions of his territory, was by that un-Christian despot...

Whatever course "His Holiness" may choose to adopt, whether to quit Rome, or with the protection of the French to hold on to his seat in the Vatican, his temporal power may now be considered at an end.

A Working Man's Appeal on behalf of Personal Religion.

During the last month a series of special religious services were held in Glasgow, Scotland, to which several days were devoted. The correspondent of a London paper states, that besides open-air meetings, which were attended by vast multitudes, on the evenings of the Wednesday and Thursday, meetings were held in the city hall, and in several of the city churches, all of which were numerously attended.

Says The Welsh Journal:—"It was most interesting to attend the variety of services. Many who had hitherto been careless, and who had neglected their souls, were now being called to attend to their spiritual needs."

to make up for time lost, but well open. Numbers of people were present. The services were held in the city hall, and in several of the city churches, all of which were numerously attended.

One of the most striking things, however, in connection with these services, was the address of a man named Robert Cunningham, known as "the Bridgwater butcher." His tale, as told by himself, reads thus:—"I was brought up in the Bridgwater, and I was one of the many who were brought up in the Bridgwater."

The Use and Abuse of Tobacco.

To the Editor of the Times. Sir,—Having been applied to, some time since, to join in a petition to the House of Commons that they would appoint a committee to inquire into the effects produced by the prevailing habit of tobacco smoking, I declined to do so; first, because it did not appear to me that such a committee would be very competent to discuss a question of this kind; and, secondly, because even if I were to do so, I did not see that it would be possible for Parliament to follow up by any act of legislation the conclusions at which such a committee might arrive.

smoking which prevails in certain classes of society in the present day. The effects of this habit, indeed, various, the danger attending its use is increasing, and the amount of it in the world is increasing. It is a habit which is increasing in the world, and the amount of it in the world is increasing.

On the 10th inst., by the Rev. David Morrison, at Strathgarry, Mr. Charles Stewart to lecture on "Tobacco." By the same and at the same time Mr. ALEX. STEWART, of Strathgarry, also lectured.
