EDUCATIONAL NOTES. The next examination of school will be held 16th and 17th prox. The Eight Teachers' Association met on the 7th and 8th inst., at St. Thomas. We propose to refer to the proceedings at greater length.

AGRICULTURAL.

AGRICULTURAL. PUDDINGS AND SAUCES. In making puddings always beat the eggs separately, straining the yolks and adding the whites the last thing. If boiled milk is used, let it cool somewhat before adding the eggs; when fruit is added, stir it in at the last. Raisins are better to use than currants, and raisins require a moderate heat; better and corn starch, a rather quick oven. Always bake them in a tin.

THE MARITIME FLOUR TRADE.

THE MARITIME FLOUR TRADE. To the Editor of the Mail. Sir.—In the report of Mr. Blake's address in a speech, an attempt is made to show the National Policy to be disadvantageous to the Maritime Provinces, as respects our breadstuffs supply, and the following is his line of argument. The people of the Maritime Provinces, he says, are obliged to buy their flour in Ontario, and the freight being higher from that Province than from the American seaboard cities, the Maritime buyer finds the cost of his flour increased by extra freight; in other words, the article bought in Ontario, plus the freight, costs higher than an equally bought in New York.

THE ENGLISH MAIL.

THE ENGLISH MAIL. Interesting Summary of News. ENGLAND. It will be remembered that during the summer months considerable commotion was created in London circles by the departure of Sheffield wire for the United States. Within the past week there have returned to Sheffield some of the cutlery who had an experience of American commercial honesty. A Sheffield cutler, about fifty years of age, with some private means, on being interrogated, said—"I am one of those who in the summer went out to the States on the representation that I was to have a comfortable home. On the 29th, July we sailed from Liverpool in the Algeria for New York, and had a stormy passage extending over thirteen days. By Colonel Farry to work in a cutlery manufactory there. Our engagements were these—three months to be spent in the States, to be married and single. When we got there we were to have dwelling houses ready for us, but the first morning when we got on shore we were taken to the Castle garden, where our boxes were searched. After that we were taken to the William Flather street, and made to go to work in the same way as the other men who had been brought to the States. The first day we went to the work, but we found that everything was not as we had expected. The work is built in

THE MARRIAGE OF THE YEAR.

THE MARRIAGE OF THE YEAR. The marriage of the year, as it is called, is that of Miss Mary Ann, daughter of Mr. John Hallifax, of the City of London, and Mr. John Hallifax, of the City of London. The marriage took place on the 29th inst. at St. Martin's Church, London. The bride was accompanied by her father, and the groom by his father and mother. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Canon of St. Martin's, and was attended by a large number of guests. The bride and groom were married at 11 o'clock, and the ceremony was over by 12 o'clock. The bride and groom were both dressed in the most elegant manner, and the ceremony was a most successful one. The bride and groom were both very happy, and the ceremony was a most successful one.

hundred and fifteen hares were counted on either side of the field, and sixty-five were seen on the other side. It was estimated that "on one field of thirty acres, seven with three or four hares, and on which the hares were not counted, the corn being eaten or broken down by the game." We are not surprised to hear that the tenant has given notice to leave. On another farm the writer was invited to witness an assembly of hares taking their evening meal off the tenant's swedes, and he says, "I was glad to get away, for I began to think they would back my legs, there were so many. In this case also the tenant left the farm, and it remains until this day. We cannot but think that North Lincolnshire is exceptionally unfortunate in the matter of ground game; but there is no doubt that the time has come to decide whether England is to be a vast preserve or a country in which the agriculturist has something like a fair chance. No one wishes to see sport abolished, but those who misuse the term who apply it to the wholesale slaughter of hares and pheasants, and it is certain that the former cannot now be in England with less advantage, even the smallest, that operates to his detriment or removal.
