RAILWAY COLLISION.

A fatal wreck occurred on the Santa Fe Railroad near Franconia, Arisona, a witch station twenty miles east of Needles, Cal., last Wednesday. Seven rainmen were killed and three passengers and fourteen trainmen injured. Limited trains east and west bound crashed together while running full speed. The east-bound train was driven by two engines, while the west-bound train had but one locomotive. The hree engines were crushed and blown pieces by an explosion which followed the collision. Both trains were made up of vestibule cars of the heaviest kind, and while they stood the terrific shock well and protected the passengers to a great extent, several of the cars took fire at once and burned up the dining cars, one on each train, one Pullman and two composite cars were destroyed
