He failed to get a place. The third attempt was at Seaford where he is owned. The race was for stallions only. Godeitch and Magician started in the same race. The struggle for supremacy however, was between Godeitch and Erjn Chib and Godeitch, who won, but not before the black fellow had placed two heads to his credit."

The Grand Review, Paris, Oct., gives a former townsman of ours an excellent record. It says:—"We are pleased to welcome to our town this week a new and enterprising business man, in the person of Mr. W. H. Ridley. Although a new arrival in the town, he is not a stranger in the town. A number of years ago he occupied the position of Express Agent in Paris, and proved himself a most desirable citizen. Another matter which gives him the claim to be considered as an old Parisian is the fact that he is the proprietor of the charming young ladies of the town, in the person of Miss Adams, daughter of W. E. Adams, Esq. Mr. Ridley has developed into an energetic business man, and he comes to Paris with a reputation fully earned. He will open out to-morrow, one of the largest and best assortments of dry goods ever brought to Paris. He has full lines of staple and fancy dry goods, and is particularly well stocked in clothing and gent's furnishings. Millinery he will not take up at present, but expects to be prepared for the spring trade. Mr. Ridley will not only be a new renew old friendships, and will make new ones. We would advise our readers to give him a call.

C. E. T. S.—The second monthly meeting of St. George's branch, for this season, was held in the school room on Tuesday evening last, and was well attended. The opening piece, a quartette by Miss Cooke and Mrs. Pridham, and Messrs. Fisher and Belcher, was very much appreciated, as was also Mrs. Pridham's solo, "Sing on, sweet Angels." Miss Nettie Crabb appeared in a solo, and showed an increase of confidence and power. Mrs. Toms was welcomed in her song "Daddy" and also in her rendering of "The Leper" by N. P. Willis. Mr. Embury caught the ears of all those who could appreciate quiet humor in Mark Twain's response to the toast of "The Babies." This toast, in accordance with the rapidly prevailing custom at banquets, and in consideration of the innocency of the subject, would doubtless be drunk in pure cold water. The effective work of the meeting, however, was done in the address of the evening, delivered by the Rev. G. R. Turk. He deplored the evil of intemperance, but refrained from dwelling upon them as they were universally admitted. He rejoiced, however, that the churches were showing an unbroken front of opposition, which was equally true of the intelligent press of the country. He congratulated the church of England upon her stand in the opening remarks of the chairman, who had stated that the society in England numbered amongst its members, all the Bishops, and had total abstainers 5,000 of the clergy, and as a membership amongst the laity of some 800,000, and that its membership was by no means limited to the members of the established church. He was glad to know that the moderation pledge had found a place of usefulness, but thought Archbishop Farrar's standing offer of $500 for any case of intemperance cured without total abstinence was a very strong and standing argument in favor of the society's total abstinence pledge. He believed in total abstinence, but he believed also in an educated temperance sentiment keeping pace with, or being in advance of legislation; and after all, the most effective prohibition was for every man and woman to pass a prohibitory law for himself or herself. In harmony with this advice a number signed the total abstinence pledge, and became members of the society at the meeting.

Prohibition Succeeding.—Opponents of prohibition say that the law can not be enforced; that prohibitory liquor laws in the States which have adopted the same are a dead letter. The Atcheson Champion, published in the State of Kansas, tells a different story. Read for yourselves:—"It is about time that this lying about drinking in Kansas should come to an end. There is less drinking in Kansas, and the people are more temperate than in any other State of the American Union. A temperance millennium has not been established, it is true; but, on the other hand, nine-tenths of the drinking and drunkenness of former years has been abolished. Further, the temperance sentiment is steadily growing in this State, growing steadily and firmly. Tens of thousands of men now go to bed every night sober and self respecting who went to bed every night four or five years ago, soaked with liquor. Thousands of women and children hungry for the milk of human kindness, are comfortably clad, and sit down every day at the tables provided with all the necessities of life. Four-fifths of the people of this State, knowing that what we assert is true, have resolved that they will return to the old order of things. The open saloon in Kansas has gone, and gone to stay."

SWAMP WHISKEY.—Two More Howick Men Captured.—One of Them Escapes from the Officers.—Early on Wednesday morning, October 27th, Inspector Cavan, I. R., accompanied by Constables Scott and Hicks, of Brussels, and Paisley, of Clinton, started northward on search for prisoners suspected of being engaged in the illicit manufacture of whiskey. About 7 o'clock a. m. Constable Hicks and Constable Brethor, of Wroctester, went to the Royal Hotel, in that village, and arrested Robt. King, a man of about 35 years of age, unmarried, who was boarding at this house, and put him in the lock up. He was a native of Scotland had laid hands on Sebastian Hooper, a youth of about 17 years, who resided with his father in the south east corner of Turnberry township. The place was thoroughly searched and two stills in the course of manufacture were found in a back room. The prisoners were brought to Brussels and came up for trial before Justices Hunter and Shaw, Wednesday evening. Hooper pleaded guilty. King said "not guilty" but his own evidence and that of Byrco Young, a brother-in-law to Hooper, convinced him that he was guilty. He was sentenced to two months imprisonment and a fine of $400 each, and in default six months additional. Another still was found in the bush where the manufacturing had gone on. A considerable quantity of illicit whisky was also found. It was supposed to know say it is the stuff, enough to kill a dog. The prisoners were brought before Messrs. Hunter and Shaw, J. P., and the evidence being clear, both were sentenced to pay a fine of $400 each, and also to be committed to jail for two months.

King was in the lock-up, and Hooper stated that if the Constables would go out into Howick with him he would show them where the still was used. As Cavan was anxious to destroy the still, he consented to this, and he, with a constable and Hooper, started out in a double rig; it was pretty late when they reached it, and after driving it, they all started back for Brussels. The constable was driving, and Cavan and the prisoner Hooper occupying the rear seat. Hooper had not been long in the seat, and the evidence being clear, he was not thought necessary. The night was pitch dark, and when about five miles from Brussels the driver was surprised to hear a splash in the road as if some one had fallen, and looking round he was just able to see that the back seat was vacant. Running the horses to a fence as quickly as possible, he went back and found Cavan standing with a drawn revolver, over a black object supposed to be Hooper, and threatening to blow his brains out if he moved. The black object proved to be a log, and the most diligent search failed to reveal the whereabouts of Hooper, who it seemed jumped from the rig, followed by Cavan, but had made his escape in the darkness. They felt very much annoyed that the prisoner had made his escape, but the darkness favored him King was taken to Goderich.

Mr. John Elliott, jr., of London, while shooting in this vicinity, Friday morning, captured a fine large deer. They are reported somewhat plentiful throughout the townships of Stephen and Hay.
