I know There Was Something the the person who is always pitying him-Matter.

This morning as I sat in the trolley car reading I had a vague sense of something unpleasant without realizing just what it was. This consciousness finally grew upon me so that I came back into the world from a very absorbing story to find out. And behold, it was simply that somewhere in the car a child was talking in a querulous voice.

A child's voice ought to be a beau tiful thing, full of sweet, high notes and sunshine and hope. It is a positive sin to permit querulousness to it over pleasantly," says the mother, and even the three-year-old knows what that means, and does it.

LIGHT, HEAT, COMFORT!

The proprietor of one of the best known multiple shopping systems is credited with saying, "Give me any old shop, in any old street, and I'll guarantee to make it in twelve months the most widely known and best frequented shop in the district." He was asked to explain. Holding up three fingers he said, "I believe in the trinity of LIGHT, WARMTH, COMFORT. I should dearly the moths until the conditional below. dazzle the moths until the candle drew them, I should bring them into a warm, comfortable shop, filled with a soft, pleasing radiance, and the rest is-well, mere child's play."

Mixed metaphors, perhaps, but expressive. Now we can more than imagine the kind of shop this well-known individual would open, for we pass it in almost every town—always a landmark open, for we pass it in almost every town—always a landmark to the street. No one fails to notice it. There is an indefinable air of welcome and invitation as one stands for a moment on the pathway and lets one's gaze travel inside it. The subdued, restful lighting effect that so charms because of its very unobtrusiveness, the absence of dark corners, the intangible feeling that if one would step inside one would be sure of experiencing a delicious sense of warmth and comfort and cheerful all these are part of its appeal. Truly a shop with an
