For Clean Government.

The electors of St. John's in with. chael Cashin and his colleagues, Mr. Linegar and Mr. Hunt. Whilst Mr. Linegar, the Labor candidate, was not elected, the vote recorded in his favor is one that he may well feel proud of. In the case of Sir Michael Cashin his triumph redounds to the good sense of the people of the district who would not be swayed by appeals to passion. To Mr. Charles Hunt goes the proud distinction of not alone heading the poll, but of beating the highest vote ever polled by Sir Edward Morris. It was Mr. Hunt's left was over and they would not be able to meet the men again and he was deeply grateful to each and every one for the confidence reposed to him. Mr. ward Morris. It was Mr. Hunt's deeply grateful to each and every one for the confidence reposed to him. Mr. Spencer College was a fair index of the pulse of the electorate. In the East End, the election was fought in a hearty reception. Sir Michael Cashin who was also given a hearty reception. mons by Stanley Baldwin places him one step nearer the premiership of Britain is admitted by the newspapers of England in 'general. The speech was greeted by the press and big financial men as being a very sound and reasonable one, even the Liberal papers commented favourably upon it. It received the warmest praise in the House itself and showed that Baldwin as Chancellor of the Exchequer has risen in the estimation of all politicians. The recent news of Bonar Law's retirement, which haturally caused a sensation in London, brought forth an official denial and that the Premier had no intention of giving up his post, which is true; but it is also true that the Prime Minister intends to retire as soon as party conditions permit and Baldwin's political g r o w t h party conditions permit and Baldwin's political growth brings the day of his release so

He felt that Linegar was quite satisfied that St. John's West laborers would be fittingly represented, by Hunt and Cashin. He again thanked the men of the West End for their confidence which put new life into him. The victory which had been won was a tribute to the staff and the committee. Sir Michael paid meritied tribute to the good work done by J. T. Martin, who canvassed the entire district and who was responsible for securing a large percentage of the support. He concluded his remarks by once more expressing his thanks and asked for three hearty cheers for Mr. Martin which were given with a will.
