THE CORBETT-MCCOY AFFAIR. Harry Corbett now has his say about the Corbett-McCoy affair. He talks in this way: "On the day of the fight I received a wire from Johnny Considine to bet $1,000 on Corbett at the best odds I could find. I bet $600 against $400 and could not get on any more. Now, that is every cent I bet on the fight. and you can go and gamble on that. If you have any doubt as to what I am telling you, I will write you an order on the Western Union Telegraph Company, and you can inspect all the telegrams that have been sent to me since the match was made. The whole truth of the matter is that these women are using the papers to get even with Corbett and McCoy, who have deserted them. If we believed all that women said about men, how many good men would there be in this country? They are talking about McCoy going out. If it had been a job, Jim would have been the one, for he was the logical favorite. Who ever heard of a selling plater pulling to a stake horse? When a fake fight is put up it is the favorite who always loses, for there is where the money is placed. Much as I dislike McCoy, I believe he was beaten on the level."

CHINESE QUESTION LOOMS UP. There are signs of a revival of public interest in England in the China questions, says the New York Tribune's London correspondent. The most noteworthy one is the sharpness with which Russia is attacked by the press for duplicity in dealing with the powers and for inhumanity in her methods of warfare. These criticisms may not be well grounded, but the fact that the English journals, after a long period of apathy and indifference, are uniting in a GENERAL ASSAULT UPON RUSSIA is highly significant. It indicates a return to the normal condition of English opinion of foreign affairs, which is nothing if not critical. Keen observers explain this sudden access of spirit as the natural sequence to the close of the war in South Africa.

SIR CHARLES DESCRIBED

The Mail's Candid Opinion as Given a Few Years Ago.

"Of the system which Mr. Blake deplores, Sir Charles Tupper has no toriously been the chief agent; all that is worst in it and has tended most to debase the national character is familiarly connected with his name, which may be said to be a household word of corruption. Nor has he, like his late chief, succeeded in convincing the people that, except when he is doing the dirty work of a political party, his hands are clean; or that, if he governed the nation, its honor, while it might be in danger from such exposures as that of the Pacific Railway scandal, would be secure against a deeper stain. His name is at this moment unpleasantly nected with a suspicious affair in England, and if the sentence of the arbitrators in the Onderdonk contract case next month should be against the Dominion, another sinister transaction would be called to mind. It is too evident what sort of scene would be opened by his accession to power. He is the prince of political cracks-men, no doubt, but we cannot afford to purchase ability, even so rare a kind, at such a price as that of con-tinued and increased demoralization.

The appointment of such a man as the head of the state would not be merely an inauguration of violence and corruption unredeemed by any true wisdom of statesmanship; it would be a signal for the disruption of the community and for a moral civil war."—Toronto Mail.

Was It Merely a Fake?

Hugh John may be a political prohibitionist, but he is not personally an abstainer. How would it do for him to prohibit himself first?-London Ad-

A characteristic Grit argument that. Whose business is it what Hon. Hugh John does in private life? The fact remains that he promised the people of Manitoba that, if he were placed in power, he would do his best to bring about prohibition. He has carried out his promises.—Belleville Intelligencer. Has Manitoba got prohibition? Is there a single "gin mill" less in operation there than when Hugh John by a fluke got into power? As to it being no business of the electors what a public man does in private life, we think that theory will be very widely disputed. In private life, Messrs. Corby, Seagram. Carling and others cater to the liquor tariff; they would hardly be chosen as the standard-bearers of prohibition.-Hamilton Times.
