MILLIONAIRE MARCUS DALY

How Montana's Mining King Got His Wealth.

His First Job in America Was Digging Potatoes on a California Ranch.

New York, Nov. 13.—Marcus Daly, of Montana, who died yesterday at the Hotel Netherlands, was born in Ireland and came to the United States at the age of 12. He landed at San Francisco, and secured a job digging potatoes on a neighboring ranch. He went to the mines before he was 15, grew up surrounded by gold and silver, was engaged by Mackay, Flood and O'Brien as foreman of the Comstock mine, and later removed to Montana, where he took the famous Anaconda copper deposit and became a millionaire. He owned immense farm lands, blooded horses and property which in Europe would be reckoned among princely palaces. He was worth about $20,000,000 at the time of his death.

Montana's recent history has been largely the history of the Clark-Daly feud. The scars left by the strife are to be found in the state from Fort Assiniboine clear across to Fort Missoula. Yet these two giants of finance were at one time close personal friends and business associates.

It was in 1880 that Marcus Daly sold his interests in the Alice mine, and with Clark purchased a large tract of land on which is now located the Anaconda copper properties. Clark was even then a wealthy man, and while Daly stayed at home to plan great improvements and to manage the property, Clark went to Paris on pleasure bent.

He returned to Montana to find that Daly had gone far ahead with the work of improvement without consulting him. Clark was dissatisfied, and demanded that Daly either buy or sell. Daly was embarrassed somewhat financially, but having confidence in the Anaconda, he succeeded in raising the sum demanded by Clark and took over his interest. Since then he has taken $20,000,000 out of the Anaconda mine—a fact which has not made his old-time associate happy.

Out of this transaction has grown a feud which has attracted more than national interest. After his unsuccessful attempt to crush Daly, Clark found that no matter what he turned his hand to, he had to encounter Daly to encounter. If Clark was in favor of a thing Daly was against it. Clark started a daily paper in Butte City; Daly put in a plant in Anaconda, and published a paper that would do credit to a metropolitan.

When Montana became a state, a dual legislature was organized. Clark and Martin Maginnis were sent to the United States Senate by the Democratic branch; T. C. Powers and W. F. Sanders by the Republicans. Daly had a part in having the latter two seated.

Again in 1893, when the coveted seat in the senate seemed within the grasp of Clark, the relentless figure of Marcus Daly loomed up, and the prize was once more snatched from the outstretched hand. Then came a battle for the state capital's location. The cities that coveted the prize were Helena, Butte City, Missoula, Bozeman and the despised Anaconda. It was supposed that Helena and Butte would fight it out. Clark lives in Butte and spent his cash liberally for his home town. When the votes were counted Helena led and Anaconda was second. Then Clark obtained revenge by throwing his strength to Helena, which finally won.

Then came the third fight for the senatorship. Clark won, but it was an empty victory. Daly carried the contest to Washington, and Clark was unseated after a sensational hearing. In the recent elections in Montana, as said, Clark elected enough legislators to win the coveted senatorship—and now Daly is dead.

The Result in Ontario.

[Winnipeg Free Press.]

There were two prominent factors governing the result of the elections in Ontario on Wednesday—the gerrymander, and an appeal to racial and religious prejudice against the Liberal leader. Either one of these would account for the opposition majority of ten that province. The province was shamefully gerrymandered by the Conservatives some years ago, and the result is to give the Conservatives seven or eight seats to which the Liberals are entitled by virtue of public opinion. The Liberals were "hived" in six or seven constituencies. With a proper redistribution bill these majorities would be spread over their natural areas, and the next election in Ontario for the House of Commons will undoubtedly give a Liberal majority and reflect the real sentiment of that great province. The gerrymander in Ontario and the unequal distribution of the population as between the eastern part of the province and the western, will account for fully a dozen seats. Sir Charles Tupper knew what he was doing, and so did Sir Mackenzie Bowell when they used their machine majority in the senate to reject a redistribution of seats in Ontario through a commission of judges.

Every city, town, village and hamlet in the Province of Ontario, as in Manitoba, was flooded with campaign literature, so written as to appeal to the Protestant and English-speaking electors to vote against the Liberal leader because their leader was Roman Catholic and of French origin. There were enough persons moved by these insidious appeals to change the result in several constituencies. One evidence that their cries took with a certain section of the population is seen in the defeat of nearly every Roman Catholic candidate on either side of politics who went to the polls. This shows that the Protestant cry raised by Sir Charles Tupper and his supporters in their campaign literature and in their public speeches had taken hold very generally throughout the province among certain classes.

The injury done to Canada, by the course of the Tupper campaign, based on sectional, racial and religious differences is very great. While Sir Wilfrid Laurier was making successful efforts to reconcile classes which had been divided by a religious cleavage in 1896, the Tupper party sought to reopen such questions for the pitiful purpose of a paltry party triumph. At the same time in the Province of Quebec the same Tupper party was appealing for the votes of the electors on the ground that Laurier was too English, too British and too eager to spring to the defense of the empire.

It was fitting that the man at the head of the organization which carried on such a criminal campaign had punishment meted out to him personally by the loss of his own seat, and a further punishment by the return of a following with diminished numbers, and by the complete loss of reputation and prestige.

We hope for better things from the public men who will in future lead the Conservative party. The country can stand a Conservative victory when the time comes, and that party shows itself entitled to the confidence of the country, but an Opposition victory on Wednesday would have been a blow at the confederation of these provinces, at the bright prospects of this young Canadian nation, and a setback to the onward course of our great empire, just as a Tupper victory in 1896 would have been an almost irretrievable disaster for the Dominion of Canada. From both these misfortunes the country has been saved by Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his distinguished colleagues.

VICTIMS OF THE WRECK

The Nova Scotia Shore Strawn With Many Bodies

After the Disaster to the Steamer Monticello—A Missing Man Safe.

Yarmouth, N. S., Nov. 12.—The shore of this county for ten miles east and west is strewn with the wreckage of the hull and cargo of the steamer City of Monticello, which foundered Saturday morning, and the bodies of victims of the disaster have been recovered from the sea, which is still raging with terrific fury. Many people have assembled at Rockville, near where the first body came ashore, and numerous relatives of members of the crew, who nearly all belonged to points on this coast, have arrived to identify the dead.

The bodies were arranged in a room in the public hall and Coroner Fuller, who held an inquest, gave an opinion of accidental drowning. All the bodies are terribly battered.

THE BODIES PICKED UP.
The first body was found at daylight, when the zinc lifeboat, which was supposed to have been swamped, was discovered on the shore. The thole pins were broken. A few yards distant were the bodies of Mr. Eldridge, a passenger, and Engineer Lewis Vanenberg, a traveler for McGee's Sons, of St. John, N. B., and the body of a seaman. All four had life belts around them. At short intervals along the beach eleven more bodies were found, making fifteen discovered up to noon today. They had all evidently come ashore in the lifeboat, and were killed on striking the beach, not one escaping.

IDENTIFIED REMAINS.
The remains so far identified, in addition to the four enumerated above, are:

Capt. T. M. Harding, the commander; Second Officer N. M. Murphy, of Yarmouth; Chief Steward M. C. Hopkins, Chief Engineer Charles Greig, Second Engineer Lewis Vanenberg, Johnson, quartermaster; Stanley Ringer, deckhand; Winslow Ringer, oiler; Robert Nickerson, deckhand; Levi Nickerson, waiter; Wynne Vanenberg and his wife, Mrs. Vanenberg, both cooks; Walter Cunningham, waiter; Austin Wickens, waiter; David Benjamin, deckhand; Harold Copeland, deckhand; Elsie McDonald, passenger; Thomas A. Fisher, passenger; Fred Johnson, passenger; O. W. Colman, passenger; John Richmond, passenger; Rupert Olive, steward; A. E. S. Eldridge, passenger; Isaac H. Wilson, baggage-master; one man, name unknown. The watches in the pockets of two of the men stopped at 12:45 and 1:25 o'clock respectively.

SOME UNKNOWN.
The body of Capt. Harding, of the Monticello, has been found at Plenic Point, encircled with a lifebelt and fully dressed. An unknown body, supposed to be that of a traveler for a western boot and shoe firm, has been found at the same place with the bodies of Elsie McDonald and Second Officer Murphy, recovered yesterday. Of the members of the crew whose bodies were secured, Copeland and Benham were not known to be on board until their bodies were identified. They were not on the ship's articles, having joined for the trip only. Several bodies are still unidentified.

ONTARIO'S RICHES

Northern Section Full of Minerals and Woodlands.

Windsor, Nov. 13.—James Tiernan, of Sandwich, who accompanied an Ontario Government exploration party to James' Bay, has returned. He left here on June 14, with party No. 8, under the charge of J. M. Tiernan, of Tisbury, an uncle of James. The object of the trip was to obtain an estimate of the amount of land in Northern Ontario.

There were seven men appointed by the government to make the journey. In the number were included surveyors and geologists. After reaching Nipigon the party was joined by two Indian guides. The route to James' Bay is a daily unknown, and is accompanied by many dangers, as the country is unexplored. The great bay was reached on Sept. 22, after traveling 700 miles and journeyed 110 miles further to Speck's Factory. The return was made to Missanabie, a small station on the C. P. R. The total distance covered exceeded 2,200 miles.

Tiernan says Ontario's richness is totally unknown. There are vast districts in the north which abound in minerals and timber for pulp. Spruce is found in great quantities. He says there is a great opportunity for establishing a fish industry for James' Bay. Speck's Factory and the great bay are found very plentifully in all the rivers flowing into the bay. He caught a few of the finny tribe himself, but was afraid to relate any experiences for fear of trespassing on the credibility of his friends. One of his catches was a seven-pounder measuring 27 inches.

They were not on the ship's articles, having joined for the trip only. Several bodies are still unidentified.

TWO COMMERCIAL TRAVELERS.
One body was recognized last evening as John Richmond, of Essex, N. B., a traveler for a boot and shoe firm. He was not before known to have been a passenger. This swells the known death roll to 32. Benham took the place of Whitmore, previously reported lost. Copeland was also a substitute, but for whom it is not known.

The body of O. N. Coleman, another commercial traveler, who was not previously known to have been on board the Monticello, has been washed ashore and identified. He represented Levi Bros. & Co., jewelers, Hamilton, Ont., and carried samples in trunks worth $5,000. One trunk has been found.

Wreckage of all kinds litters the shore. Boxes, barrels, pieces of ship's boats and parts of the superstructure of the steamer.

MISSING MAN SAFE.
James Bam, a merchant, of Yarmouth, who was supposed to have been on the steamer, having missed the steamer in St. John, Rupert Olive was crossing the bay from St. John to Yarmouth to rejoin his own steamer. Chief Steward Hopkins, of the steamer Yarmouth, yesterday having taken his brother's place for one trip. Boston, Nov. 13.—The three-masted vessel, Myra C. Weaver, was wrecked in Vineyard Sound Saturday morning, and six lives were lost. The names of those who perished are: Captain R. S. Van Naman, of Philadelphia, aged about 35; Steward William Peterson, New Orleans; Chas. Magnusson, of Bergen, Norway; John Hejman, of Finland; Mrs. Mary Emerson, aged about 23, of Mobile, and Miss Ella De Boe, aged 15, also of Mobile. Miss Emerson was a sister-in-law of the captain, and Ella De Boe was her niece. The bodies of First Mate John Kearney, of Calais, Me., and
