WINNIPEG

spectively. After opening $\frac{1}{4}$ c higher on the strength of higher L cables and further reports of the West, the market ran into good buying, but this was easily sold, and when "longs" began to profit at the advance of yesterday's close.

Prices declined about 1½¢, but recovered before the close. There did not appear to be any export buying of any consequence and only a light volume of trade worked, the closing being weak. There was little trade passing in soft winter coarse grains, with oats steady and unchanged. Barley was weaker under hedging pressure, and closed about ¾¢ lower. Rye was steady and fractionally lower. The flax market continues quiet, with a light trade moving with unchanged prices to the other end.

The cash wheat market was a sluggish and slow affair, with offers limited and the demand only changed to fractionally better, the lower grades were unchanged. Lower, 1.20; 2.00, 1.00; 3.00, 1.00, displaying an easier tendency with little business being worked. Very very dull.
