> "Oh, Evelyn!" breathed the other girl quickly.

> The two motorists lifted their caps and turned reluctantly away. "Our machine broke down, and we were on the back track for the farmhouse hoping to get something to eat. You see, we lost our lunch basket from the car," explained Billy, with a keen glance at the well appointed wicker hamper lying on the ground. "There is a great deal more here than we can ever eat," said the tall girl

no. It must have been put in by mistake. I believe-it's champagne," said Evelyn after a little pause.

"Oh, Evelyn!" cried Dora.

"It must have been a mistake," chal-lenged Evelyn, looking severely from one to the other of her guests. "It must have been," assented Jim

Austin, bowing with grave courtesy. "Of course," added Billy Moore. "You better throw them away, Dora," said Evelyn.

"Oh, no-er-of course!" stammered Billy, sinking back into the seat from which he had suddenly arisen. "Permit me, Miss Dora," said Jim, with heavy politeness, and, taking the two offending bottles from Dora's pretty hands, he tossed them up the in-cline toward the road. "There!" he ejaculated triumphantly as he returned to his seat. "But surely somebody will find them." remonstrated Dora. "I was going to throw them into the deep thicket, away from temptation." "We will remove them from temptation when we go away," assured Billy Moore warmly, and a little smile rip-pled the faces of the two girls.

"This is a mighty good pie," com-mented Jim after they had talked awhile of motoring and other kindred topics. "I tell you there's nobody can make a weal and 'am pie like Duffy."

A silence followed this hasty remark. "Was that thunder I heard?" asked Billy, with happy adroitness. "A-hay wagon," said Evelyn prompt-

"No; they would blow the horn," said Evelyn. "Let us finish this re-

Dr. Hamilton's Pills Cured

"I think it should be the duty of the schools to teach children how to keep well," writes Miss Nannie E. Naydon, a well-known and highly esteemed resident of Bristol. "Ignorance of the laws of health and the use of improper remedies destroyed my vigor, and led me to the verge of invalidism. I was as a girl ruddy and strong. Nothing seemed to affect me until I was about thirty. Then gas began to form in the stomach. I suffered with bloating and a general failure in strength set in. If I went upstairs my breath hurt. My system was very irregular, and until I grew pretty bad I didn't pay much heed to my condition. Then I got blue, wor-ried all the time, wakened in the night, and couldn't get to sleep again. Nope of the medicine I took helped me. One-day I was reading of a very interesting case like mine cured by Dr. Hamilton's-Pills. I took the same treatment. It was just right—didn't physic me to death, but took hold of the weak, sick parts of my system, and set things-right. It seems as if Dr. Hamilton's-Pills have made me young again, and all my color, spirits, vigor, and health of former days have returned to stay."
