Messrs. W. H. & C. H. McNish, of Lym, Ont., write: "From the very favorable reports given by our most extensive pork packing establishments, regarding the quality of the meat of the large Yorkshires, together with our own observations in regard to producing a class of pork more suited to the demands of the present day, we have decided to give the breed a fair trial, and we have got together a herd of 14 head, 7 of them being breeding sows in farrow, 4 of them being imported from the herd of Sanders Spencer, England, and we must confess that what little experience we already have had with the breed, we like them very much, and think they have come to stay. We have to choose Berkshire sows safe in farrow, (the best lot we ever had), and we expect to be better able than ever the coming season to meet the demands of those wanting either Berkshires or Yorkshires of the highest quality.
