CURRENT TRADE CONDITIONS.

ONTARIO.

The shipment of lumber by both rail and vessel is quite active, but orders for future delivery are not being placed with as much freedom as earlier in the season. It cannot be that retail dealers have replenished their stocks to any extent, as the consumption during the past two months at least must have absorbed as much lumber as was purchased. It is probable that, in anticipation of a quiet summer, dealers are postponing the buying of stock until the early fall, feeling reasonably certain that there will be no important advance in prices. There is a rather easy tone to the common and upper grades of white pine, while box and other low grade stock continue firm. In Toronto a considerable quantity of finishing and flooring lumber is being sold, as many of the buildings commenced in the early spring are reaching a finished condition. Some hardwood manufacturers are showing a little anxiety to move stocks, while others, and the majority, are exhibiting a feeling of confidence and refusing to make concessions to buyers. Mill run soft elm is held at the mill at $23 to $24, with bass-
