Last Update

Since September, the Corporate Review Implementation Team (CRIT) has been working with CRX to put in place the recommendations of last year's Corporate Review and continue the long term strategy for the changes the Department will face in the 1990s. It has been an extraordinary year in many ways. At the same time that we were responding to the need for change within EAITC, the world around us continued to astound.

In spite of the unexpected developments which the Department has had to cope with, including further serious resource reductions, the implementation process has carried on and most of the innovations and improvements planned in the Corporate Review are now in place. Although the work of renewal will continue, with specific Branches responsible for carrying each part forward, June 30 marked the formal end of the Corporate Review process as well as the end of CRX and the CRIT.

It also means the end of the Corporate Review Update. In this, our final edition, we want to recognize the tremendous support and assistance that we, in CRX, have received throughout the past year. To put in place the decisions announced in June 1990 required not only a commitment, but an enormous amount of energy, effort, imagination and risk. Throughout the Department, at all levels, we consistently received the information, advice and time necessary to help us move forward. This work was often in addition to the regular responsibilities and day-to-day work of divisions. At various times we have called on almost every division for assistance or advice; some divisions were a constant and necessary support.

At the risk of failing to mention an important contributor, CRX wishes to recognize some staff and divisions, in particular, for their special help throughout the past year:

- All the contributors to the Suggestion Box;
- The members of the Corporate Review Implementation Team: Mary Jane Starr (BML), Alan Virtue (TFX), Bill Van Staalduinen (ORD), Dave Gauthier (MCB), Yuen Wong (MCBA),
