

thing helps. Current trade protection for the parts sector in Canada is very low. If giving up the limited protection that exists would lower overseas trade barriers (which tend to be higher), the net effect is likely to be positive. (Section 4)

- When asked about preferred government interventions, a large majority of firms in this industry refer to investment, R&D, and infrastructure support. (Section 5)